Manslaughter Charged Against Two Fort Banks Soldiers—One is Said to Have Admitted Part in Trouble

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—While endeavoring to act the part of peacemaker in a street quarrel on Spencer avenue, Chelsea, near the corner of Eleanor street, early yesterday morning, the Chelsea police say, Daniel Spiller, 33 years old, married, living at 292 Washington avenue, Chelsea, was pushed or knocked down by two soldiers attached to Fort Banks, Winchester, receiving injuries which later resulted in his death.

Burt Poyner, 26 years old, unmarried, and Frank B. Dye, 27 years old, married, soldiers at the Winchester fort, are locked up in the Chelsea police station on the charge of manslaughter.

From investigations which were made yesterday, forenoon by Chief Gossard, S. Shannon, Sgt. William L. Hebblewhite and Patrolman Edward Isbister, it has been learned that Poyner and Dye Saturday morning were granted a 24-hour leave of absence from the fort. Saturday night they came to Chelsea and visited the house of John Cushing at 76 Spencer avenue, Dye, it is said, being a friend of the Cushing family.

Late Saturday night one of the soldiers, the police not being able to learn which one, had occasion to leave the house, and while outside, it is asserted that he became involved in an argument with a young man who was standing at the corner of Spencer avenue and Eleanor street. After some words the soldier is said to have returned to the house, and presently it is asserted that he came to the street accompanied by his soldier companion.

There was a reopening of hostilities it is claimed, but finally peace was restored and the soldiers started on their way. They had not gone a very great distance when it appears that the young man with whom the first soldier had the words came into view again and the argument was resumed.

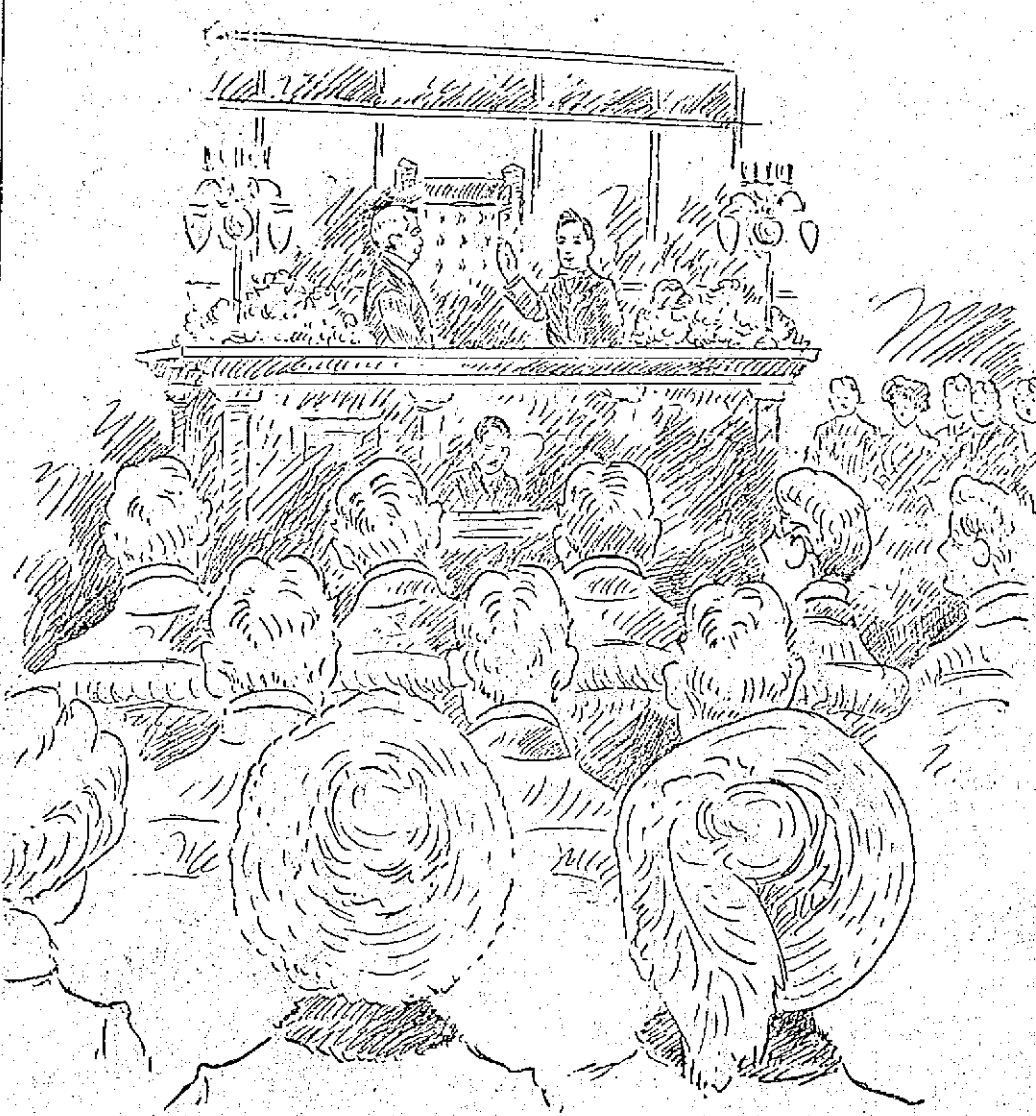

From the evidence which the police have gathered they say that one of the soldiers was uttering threats when Spiller happened along. Spiller was acquainted with the man with whom the soldiers were arguing, and attempting to play the part of peacemaker he advised all hands to make up and be friends.

The police say Spiller was either struck and knocked down or pushed down, striking on the back of his head on the brick pavements and fracturing his skull.

Half an hour later Spiller was found unconscious on the sidewalk by Patrolman Isbister. His identity at that time was unknown, but after he was taken to the Rufus S. Frost hospital a card was found in one of his pockets identifying him. He died at 5.50 yesterday morning without regaining consciousness.

About 3 o'clock in the morning Sgt. Hebblewhite and other policemen were on duty at 76 Spencer avenue. Poyner and Dye were found, and both men were placed under arrest on the charge of assault, a complaint changed to manslaughter when it was learned that Spiller was dead.

The police say Poyner and Dye acknowledged there was an argument and they further assert that Poyner has admitted that he either pushed or slapped Spiller.

JUDGE HADLEY ADMINISTERING THE OATH OF OFFICE TO MAYOR MEEHAN.

City Government of 1911 Formally Installed—The Mayor's Inaugural

The city council of Lowell for the year 1911 was formally inducted into office at city hall this morning in the presence of a large and representative gathering of men and women. The exercises opened at 9.40, somewhat late, owing to unavoidable circumstances.

The inauguration was one of the quietest in years, and while the crowd was not as large as a few years ago, there were more representative people in attendance. The inclement weather undoubtedly kept away many of the older generation and only two of the ex-mayors, James B. Casey and Frederick W. Farnham, were in attendance.

One feature somewhat marred the general happy and congratulatory atmosphere of the occasion, and that was the misfortune that has visited Alderman Daniel Gallagher, whose brother, Alderman Gallagher, died Saturday night. Alderman Gallagher felt it his duty to be present at the inauguration exercises, though he performed his duty with heavy heart and excused himself after the opening joint convention.

The multitude of candidates for office was active before and but behind the members who arrived early. The new members were all attired in new garments and looked resplendent. Alderman Rountree and Councilman Crowley of ward 7 were the Beau Brummels of the two branches.

Marched to Aldermen's Chamber

The members formed in the mayor's reception room and marched in two to the aldermen's chamber, on the threshold of which City Messenger Pattee made his time-honored announcement, "Ladies and Gentlemen: His Honor the mayor and the city council of 1911."

The line was led by City Messenger Pattee, escorted Mayor Meehan, followed by Judge Samuel P. Hadley and Rev. John J. McHugh, of St. Patrick's church, ex-Mayors Casey and Farnham and the members of the new city council who took seats in a semi-circle around the city clerk's desk.

When all had seated Mayor Meehan introduced Rev. McHugh, to deliver the opening prayer, and during the prayer the spectators either knelt or remained standing. The prayer was an eloquent invocation and concluded with the recitation of the Lord's prayer by all present.

Oath of Office

City Clerk Dadyman then announced that His Honor Samuel P. Hadley would administer the oath of office to the mayor. The latter in turn swore in the members of the city council.

Delivered the Inaugural

With these formalities over Mayor Meehan then delivered his inaugural address. The inaugural was of medium length and will be found in another column.

The reading of the inaugural was received with applause.

At the conclusion of the reading of the inaugural the joint convention dissolved and the members of the common council retired to their chamber.

Board of Aldermen

At 10.25 the board of aldermen was called to order and on motion of Alderman Daly a ballot was taken for chairman of the board.

James J. Gallagher was the unanimous choice for chairman and took his seat forthwith. Mr. Gallagher voted for Alderman Daly, but the latter moved to make the election unanimous.

Mayor Holds Reception

During the half hour following the opening exercises Mayor Meehan held an informal reception in the mayor's office.

Aldermen Resumed Session

Mayor Meehan called the board of aldermen to order at 11 o'clock and the mayor read a large list of minor appointments including constables, weighers of coal, measurers of wood and bark fence viewers, etc.

George F. Noonan was appointed superintendent of city scales. James Keefe was appointed fish warden and the appointment was approved.

John F. Mahan Appointed

The appointment of John F. Mahan as wire inspector for the unexpired term which began in 1910 was confirmed without opposition.

Orville W. Peabody was re-appointed pound keeper and the appointment was unanimously confirmed. The office pays $5 per year.

The usual order for printed copies of the mayor's inaugural was adopted. The aldermen laid on the table the order naming the meeting nights.

On motion of Alderman Daly it was voted that when the board adjourns it adjourn to January 10.

Alderman Gallagher at this point asked to be excused from further participation in the meeting.

On motion of Alderman Daly the board adjourned.

The Common Council

There were flowers galore in the common council and their fragrance was not amiss. John J. Coughlin of ward four was given three bouquets; Thomas Corbett of ward five had two; C. A. Debronde of ward six had one; Thomas Chadwick of ward seven had two; and Adolard Herard of ward three; Thomas Donohoe of ward four; George

H. Allard, Jr., of ward one; William Crowley of ward seven, and John J. Brady of ward two, one each. Wards eight and nine didn't send any bouquets.

The desks were strewn with the cards of candidates and it was said that they were more numerous than in previous years.

Clerk Dowling was the first to arrive in the council chamber and it was then 10.15. Then the members kept straggling in and a sort of social session was in order. There were some ex-councilmen present and they had words of cheer and more or less advice to offer.

At 11.45 the republican members went into caucus in the council chamber committee room. It was the second time they caucused during the forenoon.

The democrats caucused after the republicans got through. There was considerable speculation as to whether or not the council would go into joint session and it was said that the caucuses had to do with that question. The question of who would be the choice for president was an important one and Herbert E. Elliott of ward eight was in the lead. This is his second year in the council.

Candidates for office and their representatives were buttonholing the members and all the cures possible was being brought to bear. One councilman said that candidates for office were as thick as hops.

It was reported that Thomas Fitzgerald, democrat, who ran for the position of Councilman Elliot Pr-

On motion of Councilman Chapman, the board adjourned until 2 o'clock.

INAUGURATION NOTES

The following police detail was present: Supt. Redmond Welch, Lieut. John P. Freeman, Sgt. Alex. Duncan, Officers John L. Leighton, David Patrio, George S. Abbott, Alex. McLaughlin, Matthew J. McCann, Philip D. Murphy, Gilbert Sheridan, Adelard Cossette, James P. Garity, John J. Sullivan, John T. Kelly, William L. Keegan, Elot Breault and Cornelius J. O'Keefe.

The spectators were quickly seated by a corps of handsome and courteous ushers from the high school, as follows: Lt. Col. Norris L. Tibbitts, Maj. Oliver S. Flint, Reg. Adj. Nelson B. Russell, Reg. Q. M. William A. Liddell, Capt. Paul W. Tyrrell, Paul V. Ingalls, Paul F. G. Howard, Chester M. Tunels, Luke E. McCann, George Axon, Jess B. Gil and George Angevin.

Among the visitors at the exercises was Rev. James H. Queenan of Woodville, N. H., a former Lowell boy and a cousin of Mayor Meehan.

There were bouquets galore in the upper branch. There were two on the mayor's desk. Alderman Burns received four, including one from the clerks at A. G. Pollard's. Aldermen Flanagan, Jodoin and Barrett were also remembered.

Alderman Hercules Toupin left this afternoon for Canada to visit his daughters who are attending school there. He will return in time for the next meeting.

Councilman Elliot, who was elected president of the lower branch, is just recovering from an attack of illness and felt none too well at city hall today.

DIX IS GOVERNOR

First Democrat in Chair in New York in 18 Years

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 2.—John A. Dix, democrat, was formally inaugurated governor of New York today. He succeeds Gov. Horace White, who became chief executive last October when Governor Charles Hughes resigned to become an associate justice of the United States supreme court.

Surrounded by a brilliant gathering in the great assembly chamber, which had been appropriately decorated for the occasion, Governor White relinquished the office of chief magistrate to Governor Dix, the first democratic governor to assume the office in 18 years. The governor then delivered his inaugural address after the oath of office had been publicly administered by Edward Lazansky, the new secretary of state. Governor Dix was sworn in privately at his home on Saturday by Secretary of State Samuel Koenig.

Governor Dix said in part:

"On Saturday last I took the oath of office as governor of the state and pledged fidelity to the constitution of the United States and of the state of New York. That pledge I shall remember every hour. I shall remain in this great office. The end of all government should be the preservation of true liberty, that liberty which guarantees to every man the fullest measure of individual right consistent with a proper maintenance of the rights of all others and at the same time preserves and maintains the collective rights of all the members of the state."

"Under our constitution such liberty we possess in New York. It must be our constant aim to so strengthen and extend the exercise of personal and inalienable rights by the individual as to bring to the state the greatest growth in the highest development of which our citizenship and resources are capable."

"I am succeeding to the government at a time when business trans-acting and understanding are essential to the proper administration of public affairs."

"Great as are the public responsibilities of our commonwealth, expenditures and outgo have grown in a measure out of all proportion to the revenue of the state and we seem committed to an outlay which will not alone tax its credit but demand that we draw upon the future in a way which, in my opinion, is at best of very doubtful wisdom."

"Frankly, we have reached a point in our state, where for a long time past we have been living beyond our means. The pressing duty of the hour is a measure of reform and retrenchment, which will reverse this condition and restore us to the healthy and normal position where we shall have something more than a largely fictitious surplus."

"In my opinion it is far better to insist on incovenience and difficulty in the public departments than to resort to an expenditure which will compel a return to direct taxation."

"I am a firm believer in a government of the people, by the people, and I solemnly declare that I assume the responsibilities of this great office without the fetter of a single promise except my oath to obey the constitutions of the state and of the nation, and to serve and protect the rights of all."

The members of the senate and the assembly assembled in a body in the well of the assembly chamber, which was crowded with people of prominence from various sections of the state.

The parade started from the corner of State and Pearl streets and with the bands playing proceeded to the executive mansion, where Governors Dix and White and staffs, with Troop B as escort and Major General Ross and staff joined the column.

For the first time in an inaugural parade here the automobile was used. Governors Dix and White with their secretaries occupying touring cars in the parade. The paraders moved to the capitol, where the ceremonies took place. After the ceremonies Gov. Dix held a public reception for an hour in the executive chamber.

Government

Supreme

Says Con- Case Was

case was argued before the court for the first time, the government now emphasizes its position that the Sherman anti-trust law should not be interpreted so as to put the stamp of illegality upon every sort of restraint. Such a theory has been advanced before in the interest of the "good trusts," as distinguished from the "bad" ones. At the same time the government demands that the "right of congress to regulate interstate and foreign commerce be preserved untrammelled."

To this end it would allow congress the power to strike at things possibly outside of interstate commerce, such as a monopoly of manufacture, if the direct and necessary consequences thereof be to nullify rules for the regulation of interstate and foreign commerce.

The brief starts with the premise that the will of congress in respect to the power to regulate interstate and foreign commerce is the supreme law, unless shown to conflict with the constitution. The government asserts that congress has the power not only to indicate its will, but also to enforce observance of it. So the conclusion is reached that if a "reasonable necessity" arises congress may strike down by a statute a thing outside of interstate or foreign commerce that interferes with this supreme will.

In order for a "reasonable necessity" to arise, it is said in the brief that a certain nearness of relationship must exist between what the statute directly strikes and interstate or foreign commerce. That relationship, it is acknowledged, probably is not susceptible of rigorous definition.

"More indirect, incidental or remote effect on commerce is not sufficient," the government says, "but whatever is natural and probable consequence will occasion material hindrance to the conscious operation of the lawful will of congress in reference thereto, is near enough."

"This reasoning is defended as not involving the assertion of federal power generally to regulate or control production or manufacture within the states. The government says that it leaves those subjects just where they always have been and must remain with the state governments. 'It only asserts,' explains the government, 'power to deprive those engaged in production or manufacture from acts of transactions the direct necessary consequence of which must be to nullify rules for the conduct of interstate commerce admittedly within the power of congress to prescribe. And this is but to say that the power is real, supreme.'"

From this point of view the government contends that the majority of the court came to an erroneous conclusion in the famous Knight case which former President Roosevelt criticized last summer in a speech.

"There is a radical difference," says the government, "between permitting federal power derived from the commerce clause to operate upon subjects not of commerce for the essential ends above indicated and the restricted extension to anything affecting the same. And we submit, with confidence, that failure to give adequate weight to this distinction and fully to recognize that the power to regulate commerce for limited purposes and under the cir-

"The Door Called Beautiful," was Rev. J. Clement Wilson's sermon at the Chelmsford Street F. B. church, yesterday. It was the fourth and last sermon in the series on "Beautiful Things." In part he said:

"There are three reasons why this door was called beautiful, they are: 1st, because of the material which entered into its construction; 2d, because of the purpose which it served; and 3d, because of what the word 'door' symbolizes."

This gate or door was one of nine gates in the Jerusalem wall. All were overlaid with silver and gold but this last gate was the most beautiful of all, being made of Corinthian brass, very costly at that time, and overlaid with silver and gold.

Let us characterize the division of time called today, the beautiful door, then consider what materials are entering into its construction. All are contributing consciously or unconsciously materials that will make 'the door' today beautiful or hideous. This door can be beautiful only so far as the materials used are beautiful in themselves. The door served as an entrance to the temple. The purpose which 'the door beautiful' served is suggestive of three things, communion with God, fellowship with men, and an increased sufficiency in all kinds of moral endeavor.

Door symbolizes opportunities present, it also symbolizes Christ himself; he 'who went about doing good.' His life abounded in beautiful deeds. There was much of practical beauty in his life and deeds. The door stands wide open, your opportunity is always ready; enter in the unpretentious apparel of human service, forget yourself in helping others. Such material will make the door today beautiful.

Galvary Baptist Church
"A New Hold on God," was Rev. A. Reed Dill's sermon subject at the Calvary Baptist church yesterday. New Year's services were well attended at this church.

Pastor's Anniversary
The seventh anniversary of Rev. A. P. Wedge's pastorate was observed at the Worthen Street Baptist church yesterday.

"There was a special musical program last night, given by the church choir, and the sermon by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Wedge, dwelt principally on the happenings of the past year. During that time between 50 and 60 members of the church have died. The preacher spoke briefly on his seven years of service in the church and recalled many of the happy events which went to make his labors, during that time, of a pleasant nature. His recalling of facts since the erection of the present church was not lengthy. Besides this, the speaker outlined some of the work planned for the coming year, and concluded, extending to all his sincerest wishes for a happy, bright new year."

At the evening service at 6:30 o'clock Rev. Mr. Wedge spoke of the picture, "Despised and Rejected of Men," which was presented the pastor on Christmas day. The picture was on exhibition during the services.

The Passing Years
A large audience listened to a very interesting sermon by Rev. B. A. Willmott at the First Congregational church Sunday evening. "The Passing Years" was his subject. He said, in part:

"The Bible saith that three score years and ten is the length of life of man. There are some who live to four score and more, and some at that advanced age are of more value than those of 20. But, generally speaking, the three score and ten represents the life of man."

"Suppose that you had but $70 and suppose that some great work must be done with that, some work so important that the destiny of your soul depended upon it being done and done right. With what seriousness and carefulness and consideration would you spend every dollar. No dollar would be dissipated; it would be conserved, guarded."

"And so it is with your life. Your great work must be done, if you can be brought to think so. Every year of the 70, the three score and ten, means something. The loss of years means that those years can never be replaced. No power can ever bring them back to you. That is why 'Make Me a Child Again' is so timely a subject for many of us. But the sadness of it all is that you can never be made a child again, even for a night; the years have passed; you cannot go back. And to make your life all it should be one must begin at once, as early as possible, and if years cannot be recovered, lives can still be made worth much, through the overcoming of the things that have beset them."

WOMAN KILLED

In an Auto Accident In Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 2.—Miss Anna Forwood is dead and Charles H. Hayes, a chauffeur, Miss Ina Cross and James Powers are out and bruised as the result of an automobile accident late Saturday night. The rear wheels of the automobile skidded while turning a curve and the machine overturned in a ditch, plunging Miss Forwood under it. Hayes was arrested but subsequently released, the coroner deciding that the accident was unavoidable.

CHIEF HOSMER

Questioned Members of Violet Club

After making a careful investigation into the cause of the fire in the Institute building in Middle street, Friday night, Chief Hosmer has come to the conclusion that undoubtedly the blaze was caused by a smouldering cigar or cigar stub thrown into a wooden cuspidor. Two of the members of the Violet club were examined by Chief Hosmer and one of them admitted that he had been in the building as late of 6:45 o'clock.

MOISANT BURIED LAID AT REST

Funeral of Noted Aviator Was Held in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 2.—That John B. Moisant believed himself reasonably safe in an aeroplane under any circumstances was made known last night by Albert S. Levine, connected with the international aviators. A few days before his death Moisant said to Levine:

"I think there is no danger in making an aeroplane flight, if the machine is properly adjusted before the ascent is made. I do not expect to die in an aeroplane flight."

Other aviators and A. J. Moisant, brother of the dead man, believe that Moisant was dashed to his death only because something suddenly happened to his machine and not because of any mistake on his part.

The funeral of the aviator who first carried a passenger across the English channel in an aeroplane, took place yesterday morning. The funeral was marked by extreme simplicity. Among the honorary pall bearers were Moisant's team mates, Rene Simon, Rene Barriere, Roland G. Garros, Charles K. Hamilton, John J. Triebke, Edmund Andemans and Joseph Seymour. Great banks of flowers, including handsome offerings of the Aero Club of America, of France and of Great Britain, rested about the coffin.

The two sisters of Moisant and his brother Alfred were left for Jacksonville, Fla., whence they will go to Havana, and later to New York city, arriving in the latter city about January 12.

Moisant left an estate worth about $125,000, it is said. This will be held in trust for his son, now at school in Hotchkiss, Cal. The following statement was given out last night by Mr. Levine:

"A thorough examination was made yesterday of the machine which Mr. Moisant used Saturday and all witnesses were asked to describe in detail just what they saw the monoplane do. Every statement agreed on two points: First, that Moisant attempted to land when apparently no necessity arose for his landing at that particular moment or at that particular point."

"Second, that when he started to land, he was flying with the wind."

"Mr. Moisant had repeatedly stated that landing with the wind was one of the most dangerous experiments that an aviator could make."

"It will remain impossible to ascertain just what went wrong with Mr. Moisant's machine and why he started to descend when he did, particularly because he realized how highly dangerous it was to descend with the wind."

"The inevitable conclusion is that something went wrong inside of the Bleriot, something of such a serious nature that, regardless of the danger of landing with the wind Moisant was compelled to immediately seek the ground."

"The machine Mr. Moisant used was the same one in which he won second place in the international cup race at Belmont park. During the Belmont park race Moisant carried 20 gallons of gasoline in a tank situated in the same place under his machine as it was Saturday, when the accident occurred."

"At the time of the accident there were six gallons of gasoline in the tank."

"The reserve tank was not invented by Mr. Moisant, but by Louis Bleriot, maker of the Bleriot monoplane, who had designed it for Mr. Moisant, especially for flying in the contest for the Michelin cup."

"The funeral of the aviator who first carried a passenger across the English channel in an aeroplane, took place yesterday morning. The funeral was marked by extreme simplicity. Among the honorary pall bearers were Moisant's team mates, Rene Simon, Rene Barriere, Roland G. Garros, Charles K. Hamilton, John J. Triebke, Edmund Andemans and Joseph Seymour. Great banks of flowers, including handsome offerings of the Aero Club of America, of France and of Great Britain, rested about the coffin."

Funeral of J. A. Baker Held Yesterday

The funeral of the late J. A. Baker took place yesterday afternoon from the residence, 3 South Loring street, the funeral cortege proceeding to the First Baptist church, where public services were held with a large congregation. The service was conducted by Rev. S. W. Cummings, who also pronounced a eulogy, speaking in part as follows:

"Gathered here today we come to pay tribute to a man who was a workman that needeth not to be ashamed. For nearly 19 years he served this church as a faithful, energetic, painstaking chorister. In this age of restlessness and change, we gaze with more than ordinary interest at one who can successfully fill the same position for that length of time. Mr. Baker possessed in marked degree the qualities that go towards making success in any profession—devotion to his work—vim, promptness and ability. Members of the choir were often heard to say, 'If you are not out Sunday, Mr. Baker is around the first thing Monday morning to see what is the matter.' It was through personal oversight, much work, and a shrewd knowledge of and fitting into the conditions of life here, that he held his large choir together. Although nearing his 70th birthday, he was in active service almost to his very last. Mr. Baker's ambition and devotion were such that he was many times found in his place during this past year when physically he was unable to be there."

"Mr. Baker was widely known throughout the city and county as a teacher and musical director. The school children where he taught, knew him well and loved him. Many owe their start, musically, to him."

"Mr. Baker not only served his church and community, but his country as well. In 1861 he enlisted as a member of the First New Hampshire Infantry, and participated in the Battle of Ball's Bluff. Later he became a member of the band of the Third New Hampshire Infantry, and saw service at Fort Sumter, Fort Wagner and Charleston."

"He was a man of strong Christian character. To his wife, who so nobly aided him in his profession, we extend our deep, heartfelt sympathy. Much of her husband's success was due to her efficient and untiring support. They were so much one in the work, that her sense of loneliness will be all the greater. May He, who came to bind up the bruised of heart, prove her source of comfort in this hour of trial."

"Mr. Baker has gone to his reward. Who can estimate how many lives have been touched and influenced by the power of the hearty congregational singing, and volume of the chorus choir, under his direction, for which this church has been noted. Lives have been brightened, erring ones have come and been set right. Discouraged ones have taken heart again, and homeless ones found a home. Oh, the power to influence of a human life. J. A. Baker has gone to the reward of his labors, and I believe God holds for him many jewels for a crown won by the power of song."

"Now the laborer's task is o'er; Now the battle-day is past; Now upon the farther shore Lands the voyager at last. Father, in Thy gracious keeping Leave me now Thy servant sleep."

DIED SUDDENLY

Woman Was on Visit to This City

Mrs. Francis Duralieu of Manchester, N. H., died suddenly yesterday afternoon while on a visit in this city.

Mrs. Duralieu was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. David Laroque of 282 Fletcher street. She went to high mass yesterday morning and upon returning home ate a hearty dinner. She was seized with extreme pains soon after the arrival of Dr. John H. Donovan, who was hastily summoned to her bedside. Death was due to acute indigestion. The deceased was 61 years of age. She leaves to mourn her loss, two daughters, Mrs. David Laroque and Mrs. F. X. Laroque of this city, and two sons, Dan and Jean R. Duralieu of Manchester, N. H.

HANGED HIMSELF

Man's Body Discovered By His Wife

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 2.—Wakened by bells ringing in the new year, Mrs. Louise Altmyer called a "happy new year" to her husband, whom she saw in the dark, as though standing in the doorway between their bedroom and kitchen, at their Lawrenceville home. Receiving no reply, she roused herself and saw that the man had hanged himself by a strap from the lintel.

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy of known composition. Ask your neighbors. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

Not the Name of a Shoe—But the Name of a Method of Shoemaking

Every buyer of shoes should know about this system. It reduces shoe buying to an exact science. You have only to demand shoes that have been made on the marvelous Goodyear welt making machines. For the "Goodyear Welt" is the basis of every good welt shoe. Even the finest "bench-made" shoes are now made better on these inspired machines. Yet the prices are lowest. By virtue of this machinery you can now buy dressy, durable shoes at one-third the price the shoemaker used to charge.

GOODYEAR WELT

Sold Under Many Names
The term "Goodyear Welt" refers to a manufacturing process. It is not the name of any particular shoe.

Yet there are fully five hundred different reliable trade-marked shoes made by this system. Several of these famous shoes are sold by shoe dealers in this and every other town.

How to Get Them
For the guidance of the shoe buyer the United Shoe Machinery Company has compiled a list of the five hundred trade-marked names of "Goodyear Welt" shoes.

You should have this list—before you buy another pair of shoes. It points the way to economy, style, and durability in shoes.

United Shoe Machinery Co. Boston, Mass.

Send for this list today. Tear out this advertisement. Write your name and address across it. Mail to us. You will get a booklet describing and illustrating the evolution of a shoe.

It shows how sixty machines manned by one hundred and six skilled men are involved in building each single shoe. By this system absolute uniformity throughout all shoe factories is maintained. All "Goodyear Welt" shoes are uniformly good—always dependable. An interesting booklet, "The Secret of a Shoe—An Industry Transformed," which tells the true story of a great American achievement, will also be sent you. Write now.

a quartet comprising Mrs. William H. Peplin, Mrs. F. W. Roberts, F. R. Whit and W. T. Reid. A large choir composed of those who had sung under Mr. Baker sang "Nearer, My God, To Thee."

The Grand Army service was conducted by officers of Post 120, P. M. Goddard, chaplain, and F. W. Cragin, commander. The bearers were F. W. Cragin, W. L. Dickey, Caleb L. Smith, C. Oliver Barnes, W. L. Lloyd and Elridge Hutchinson. F. W. Bowen had charge of the funeral arrangements. J. A. Weinbeck directed the burial, which was in the Edison cemetery.

BRILLIANT SCENE

At New Year's Reception at the White House Today

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Notwithstanding the fact that the sky was overcast and a heavy mist filled the air, the usual phalanx of American citizens, possibly somewhat diminished, stood in front of the White House today to make the customary New Year's call upon the president of the United States.

The doors were opened at 11 o'clock when the president began the ordeal of the day. Mrs. Taft and the cabinet ladies received in the Blue room.

The White House was made attractive as usual with a wealth of floral decorations. The Marine band, in full dress uniform, was drawn up in two sections in the main corridor and throughout the receiving hours the music was continuous. The foreign ambassadors and ministers and the members of their families and suites were as usual given precedence.

A full half-hour was given over to the reception of the diplomats and the scene as they passed through the Red and Blue rooms to the east room was a brilliant one.

Following the diplomatic corps came the supreme court justices, the line headed by the new chief justice, Mr. White. Senators and representatives followed the judiciary. The congressional contingent was not a large one, however, for congress will not re-assemble until Thursday and most of the national legislators are out of the city. Speaker Cannon was a center of interest as usual. Champ Clark, who is slated to succeed Mr. Cannon, was late in reaching the White House. He received a most cordial greeting from the president.

As for many years past General Nelson Miles, retired, headed the long line of army officers who called in full dress uniform. With him walked Gen. Wood, the chief of staff of the army.

Admiral George Dewey was at the head of the naval contingent. Capt. Robert Peary was in line with his fellow navy officers. The president chatted with him a moment or two as they shook hands.

Following the army, the navy and the marine corps delegations, the president received various departmental officials, then the doors were thrown open for the reception of the general public. Many men and women had been waiting in the rain for two or three hours. The set features of the reception were hurried as much as possible in order that the public might be admitted well ahead of the time set.

TO INCREASE STATE'S INCOME

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—Important recommendations looking to the increase of the state's income by many millions of dollars annually will be made to the legislature by the joint committee appointed two years ago to revise the corporation and revenue laws of the commonwealth. The recommendations cover many branches of industry, and if adopted by the legislature, which convenes tomorrow and signed by the governor, will become operative at once.

It is proposed to levy a one mill tax on the $2,000,000,000 of capital stock of manufacturing corporations, which has heretofore been exempt from state taxation. The committee also recommends a tax of 25 per cent. of the value of all anthracite coal at the mouth of a mine or a flat rate of five cents on each ton of anthracite mined.

A direct inheritance tax of one per cent. and a graduate inheritance tax are recommended.

ASSESSED VALUE OF CITY SHOWS INCREASE OF $540,000

NORTHAMPTON, Jan. 2.—Calvin Coolidge was inaugurated as mayor for a second term today. Mayor Coolidge in his inaugural said that the total assessed value of the city showed an increase during the past year of $540,000. The mayor urged that special efforts be made to conserve the resources of the city. Considering that the officers of many important boards and departments serve without pay, he suggested that the salaries of the members of the board of overseers of the poor be discontinued as fast as their terms expired. On the other hand he urged that the police department be given several additional patrolmen and that the fire department be increased by a number of permanent men. He declared that greater pains should be taken in the care and prevention of contagious diseases.

CHILD'S CONDITION SERIOUS
Little Bertha Centu who was badly burned about the body Saturday afternoon while playing near the stove at her home, 235 Walnut street, is still in the same condition at the Lowell hospital, and the physicians have little hope for her recovery. The mother, Mrs. Athanasia J. Centu, who was burned about the hands and arms has improved a little, but is still confined to the hospital.

Mrs. Adelaide Lequin, president of Cercle St. Louis, is visiting relatives in Holyoke, Mass.

ALBERT FAMILY

Held a New Year Celebration Yesterday

The 15 children of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Albert all gathered at the old homestead yesterday morning for the annual Jour de l'An reunion. A merry party from Lowell drove out to the old folk's home in Pelham, N. H., arriving there at midnight and finding a delicious spread of roast sucking pig, turkey and "caviar de l'oeuf." This last item on the menu was the result of Undertaker Joseph Albert's late hunting exploits.

Present at the feast were Mrs. Ernest Ouellette, Mrs. Pierre Beaulieu, Mrs. Eugenie St. Hilaire, Joseph, Firmin, Isidore, Paul, Josephine, Lucille and Rosanna Albert, all of this city; Charles Albert and Mrs. Joseph Bradette of Dover, N. H.; Mrs. Clara Grenier of Magog, Que., and Mrs. Marie Louise Bascam of Newmarket, N. H.

NARROW ESCAPE

Child Ran Into Fender of Car

Helen Brassill, aged ten years, and residing at 58 Walnut street, had a narrow escape from being seriously hurt in Middlesex street shortly before 12:30 o'clock this afternoon as a result of running against the member of an outward bound Middlesex street electric car.

The car left Merrimack square at 12:15 with Motorman Thomas M. Donohue on the platform. As the car approached South street the motorman applied the brakes preparatory to making a stop on the other side of the crossing.

When the car had almost come to a standstill the little girl rushed through South street and across Middlesex street and struck the side of the front fender of the car. She was knocked down by the force of the contact, but picked herself up and said she was not hurt.

WORLD'S RECORD

Was Made by Aviator Estophey

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 2.—With hundreds cheering his wonderful spurt around twelve laps which remained to complete his task of running a thousand miles in as many consecutive hours, Eugene Estophey yesterday established a new endurance world's record. He started at 10 o'clock in the morning of Nov. 20. He actually ran a mile each hour since the start, getting meals and sleep between miles. Estophey's reward consists of a $1,000 purse and his expenses.

P. J. HENNESSEY

Well Known Lawrence Man Dead

After an illness of over three months, Patrick J. Hennessey superintendent of public property of Lawrence, died Sunday morning at his late home, 53 Buswell street, in that city.

Mr. Hennessey's death was not unexpected, as his illness had extended over a long period and for some time it had been known that he was in a serious condition. The best of medical aid was sought during his illness and although every effort was made to restore him to good health, results show that the fight was an unequal one. He bore his illness with patience and fortitude. In sickness his pleasant ways did not forsake him and he always bore his sufferings bravely, trying to make it as easy as possible for those whose duty it was to care for him.

Deceased was connected with many fraternal and social organizations throughout the city and his pleasant company was always sought. One of the greatest characteristics of Mr. Hennessey was his love of outdoor sport, especially baseball in which the deceased showed himself to be a player of most extraordinary ability and during his career on the diamond was connected with many of the strongest semi-professional teams in this city and state. He always was a devotee of the great national game and even when compelled to stop playing the game his interest waxed the same. He served as a member of the board of directors of the Lawrence Athletic association, previous to the sale of the baseball club. He was also a boxer of some note in his younger days.

Mr. Hennessey was born in Lawrence and lived there all his life. He received his early education in the public schools of the city leaving to accept a position in one of the mills. He remained in the mill a short time and started to learn carpentering with Contractor James Flanagan. He learned his trade and worked at it until he was elected superintendent of the public property in 1904 which office he has held ever since.

MAYOR LATHROP

ADVISES MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP OF LIGHTING SYSTEMS

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 2.—For the first time in Springfield's history a mayor was inaugurated for a two-year term when Mayor Edward Lathrop took the oath of office in Memorial hall today.

The mayor's inaugural message was something of a departure from the usual mayoralty inaugurals of this city. Inasmuch as Mr. Lathrop strongly advocated the municipal ownership of the gas and electric lighting systems, at present owned by two separate corporations. He also advocated the auditing of all city departments.

Mayor Lathrop called attention to the recent merger of the two traction systems of the city, the Springfield street railway and the Springfield & Eastern street railway companies which he declared would cause the city financial loss.

He pointed out that the treasurer's report showed that the city was out $18,000 of the city limit, and said that although the tax rate is among the lowest of the 32 cities of the commonwealth, it would be necessary to exercise great care in the management of city affairs.

BOXING GOSSIP

Boxers who hug and hold in clinches are much disliked by the New York clubs just now, and the opposition to these tactics may soon result in needed reforms. If referees will strictly enforce the Queensbury rules some of the glove contests will be cut short and the fight will be out of play. While it is supposed to be illegal to render a decision in bouts held in the state of New York—a belief that prevents a referee from naming a winner either on points or a foul—there is no good reason why a referee cannot stop a bout the moment he finds that his orders are persistently disobeyed. It is not illegal for a referee to call a halt when a boxer is hopelessly beaten to prevent a knockout, so there seems to be no reason why a fight cannot be stopped because of foul tactics.

THE FIRE ALARMS

That Kept Department Busy During Year

According to Chief B. S. Hosmer of the Lowell fire department the fire loss for the present year will be much smaller than it was for several preceding years. There were 745 fires against 836 for last year. This year there were 211 alarms against 237 for last year, 156 telephone alarms against 151 for the last year, 331 stills against 325, and 40 automobiles against 72 last year. There have been but five exposures reported this year and 21 last year.

Two of the biggest fires of the year occurred within a few days, that which broke out in the plant of the Merrimack Photo Engraving Co. yesterday morning and the fire in the Institute building in Middle street last night.

The following is a tabulated list of the alarms during the 12 months of the year: B indicates bell; S, still; T, telephone; A, automatic; and B, exposure.

JACK JOHNSON

Is Going Abroad to Fight

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—It looks as if Jack Johnson, the world's champion, would succeed in getting the arbitrary terms he asked for to fight in Paris. These, it will be remembered, were $25,000 win, loss or draw, to be deposited in this country at the time of signing articles, and have the name of the referee.

Hugh McIntosh then came along with an offer of a $15,000 purse for the men to settle their differences in London and Moran lost no time in cabling an acceptance. Wolgast, however, declared that he would not fight for McIntosh unless he received the entire amount of the purse, and furthermore, stated that he didn't care to box Moran in England. Now comes another ultimatum from Manager Harvey, which seems to place Wolgast in a most embarrassing predicament.

"We will fight Wolgast in America and nowhere else," says Harvey, "and we will sign articles stipulating that the winner can take 50 per cent of the purse. Moran is ready to fight any time after New Year's and I think we can get a $15,000 purse or even more money in California. I am prepared to bet $5000 on the side and will put up the money with a responsible stakeholder at a day's notice. All we ask is that Wolgast should state clearly just when he wants to fight. He is the champion and has a right to dictate terms, but the public will not stand for unfair conditions."

If Wolgast is game and thinks he can beat Moran let him come out into the open now and show that he means business. If he isn't willing to let Moran have more than half a dollar win, loss or draw, we will fight him just the same. Moran doesn't care so much for the money, for by whipping Wolgast he can clean up a fortune later on. But we think that the time has arrived when Wolgast must say what he is willing to do.

Moran will be in Chicago next week, and as Wolgast is in Milwaukee I expect to corner him in such a way that the public will know whether he is afraid or not. Under the rules of the ring a champion must accept a legitimate challenge or forfeit his title. Wolgast hasn't met a first class man since last February and is rapidly losing caste. If he isn't going to fight again we want to know it, because then Moran will claim the light-weight championship of the world and will meet all comers at 135 pounds ringside. He will also go home to England and meet Freddie Welsh. So it is up to Wolgast to keep the title in America or stand convicted of rank cowardice."

It is a matter of record that within the last year comparatively few contests at New York clubs have resulted in knockouts or in one-sided defeats. While charges of faking have been infrequent it is the general belief that in many instances rival boxers have indulged in holding and clinching with the idea of killing time so that both could stay the ten round limit. Convinced that they have no legal right to disqualify contestants, referees have refrained from interfering with such tactics, with the result that many bouts are unsatisfactory and club members are finding no end of fault. But clean boxing can be restored just as soon as contestants realize that referees have the power to stop all bouts in which the rules are disobeyed. As soon as the boxers thus prevented from going on realize that they will forfeit pay for their services, it is argued, wrestling and holding will disappear promptly and the moment offenders receive a warning.

Holding, wrestling, butting, heeling with the gloves and tripping constitute foul work strictly prohibited by the rules of the ring, yet all of these things are done by boxers at New York clubs without fear of disqualification. Jim Driscoll and Bill Papke were recently disqualified for fouling in Wales and Australia respectively. They were guilty of tactics that are permitted here, but the rules in those countries are adhered to and the decisions were fair square tests of boxing skill, absolutely free from methods employed in barrooms and the streets.

After watching the eight round draw between Jim Barry and Tony Ross at Memphis last Monday night Carl Morris, the Oklahoma giant who recently pulverized Marvin Hart in three rounds was asked for an opinion. "I can whip Barry and Ross in the same ring the same night," was his reply. "They don't know any more about the game than I do and I know they can't hurt me. I'd just want to get in a couple of good punches. That's all. Morris was introduced to the crowd. It was his first appearance east of the Mississippi river and he made an excellent impression. When he got into the ring he towered above Barry and Ross. Morris announced that he would fight either Barry or Ross in Oklahoma and that later he intended to issue a challenge to meet any heavyweight in the world. He said he weighed 235 pounds stripped and was as hard as nails.

ing of the referee. The offer of the match to Johnson came in a letter from Al Lippe, who is in Paris with Harry Lewis. He offers the colored man $25,000 in the name of the Wagram club. A cable message to this effect was sent to Al Lippe at once. Ed Smith being named as the holder of the $25,000 which is to be John's part of the purse. Lippe wrote that the club was willing to put up $25,000 for Johnson's end, win, loss or draw, the battle to be twenty-five rounds and to be decided some time during the months of April and May. Johnson has agreed to meet the winner of the Langford-Jennette fight, scheduled to take place in Boston, Jan. 20. Johnson intends to sail for England about the middle of March after he has completed a tour of the western country.

TWO SOLDIERS ARRESTED

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—Two soldiers from Fort Banks, Whitman, Earl Poyner, aged 26, and Frank H. Dye, aged 27 years, were arrested last yesterday charged with manslaughter, on account of the death of Daniel Spiller of Chelsea at the West hospital in Chelsea early yesterday.

It is claimed that Poyner struck Spiller on the street during the New Year's eve festivities and that the latter fell to the street unconscious, later dying at the hospital.

JIMMY GARDNER

Lays Claim to Middleweight Championship

Jimmy Gardner is the latest one to put in a claim for the middleweight championship. The Lowell boy says he is in line for Stanley Ketchel's old title through his defeat of Frank Klaus of Pittsburg in this city a short time ago. Gardner won from Klaus in a one-sided twelve round battle. Up until this contest the Pittsburger was considered to be a claimant for the middleweight honors. In the recent battle Klaus was an overwhelming favorite in the betting, and the victory of Gardner gave the talent a bad upset. All through the battle the Lowell boy made Klaus look like an amateur. Gardner is now after a battle with Hugo Kelly, the Italian middleweight of Chicago, who has also put in his claim for the title. The winner of this contest will be matched with Billy Papke, who is to return from Australia in March. Gardner has a wonderful defense and a great left hand jab. He is a brother of George Gardner, who held the light-heavyweight championship several years ago.

FITCHBURG, Jan. 2.—Mayor M. Frederick O'Connell began his third year as mayor today, being inducted into office with the customary ceremonies. His party, the Independent Citizens, controls the city council in joint session by a good majority, having a majority of the members of both the board of aldermen and of the common council.

In his inaugural address the mayor points with pride to the fact that the tax rate has been reduced each year during his term of office. That the funded debt has been decreased during the past year by $37,539 and the net debt reduced to $63,539. The financial exhibit shows a credit balance of $25,000 in the city treasury.

The mayor recommended the appointment of a special committee to consider the subject of municipal taxation, urged economy in the school department, commends the street commission for keeping within its appropriation during the past year and advocates measures which will in the future prevent the frequent excavation of streets by public service corporations, suggests that politicians in the fire department drop holes on the department, favors placing the water department directly in the hands of the city treasurer and criticizes the board of health.

JOSEPH DAIGLE

Run Over and Badly Hurt on Aiken Avenue

Joseph Daigle of Draught was badly injured in a runaway accident late Saturday afternoon. Mr. Daigle and his brother, Aimée, were loading their wagon at 114 Aiken avenue, when the horse frightened by a flying piece of paper, ran away. The animal dashed through the yard and went down Aiken avenue at break neck speed. Aimée Daigle luckily escaped injury by jumping to the road. His brother, less fortunate, clung to the reins for some 50 yards, and was finally thrown under the horse's hoofs. One of the wheels of the wagon passed over the man's leg, bruising it badly. The injured man was removed in an unconscious condition to Adolphus Bouchard's house, 114 Aiken avenue, and a doctor was summoned. Daigle was badly bruised about the face and body, but suffered no fracture. The frightened animal was stopped at the junction of Lilley and Aiken avenues. Daigle was later removed to his home in Broadway, Draught.

PRES. KINGSLEY

Doesn't Expect Big Business This Year

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—President Darwin P. Kingsley of the New York Life Insurance company starts his new year with pessimistic predictions as to business prospects in 1911. In remarking that he regards the outlook as hardly conducive to cheerfulness he says: "If I were to name a controlling cause I should charge it to the fact that the governmental functions have not been well or wisely performed. Business, vigorously and efficiently carried on, expanded beyond the comprehension of the average legislator and at many points beyond the range of clear legal interpretation. Business then committed some of the grave errors that human beings under such conditions have always committed. Broadly speaking, it was honestly conducted and represented unprecedented efficiency. Reforms were necessary in the conduct of business as in the efficiency of the supervising authorities. Reform, however, took just the opposite course. It attacked business bitterly and attempted to correct its own remissness in a half hearted way. Put these men in stripes was the attitude of the government toward the leaders of many of the greatest industrial enterprises of the day."

NEW YEAR'S HONORS

Absence of Any New Peerages Caused Great Surprise

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Much surprise will be occasioned by the absence of any new peerages last night, the New Year honors. The political prophets had predicted an unusually large list of peerages, the names of the Rt. Hon. Richard B. Haldane, secretary for war and others having been mentioned. Some conservative papers have talked of the appointment of as many as 20 or 30 new peers.

The omission is susceptible of two possible explanations. Either the King would not sanction or Premier Asquith was reluctant to recommend the creation of peers while the difficult question relating to the house of lords remained unsettled. Doubtless many unionists will jump at the conclusion that the prime minister failed to obtain the required guarantees from the King, but it is considered more reasonable to suppose that the government recognized the futility of treating new peers while the question of drastic reform of the upper chamber, with the possible abolition of the hereditary basis, was in the air.

The premier's list of honors comprises six privy councillors, the most notable of whom are Alexander William Murray, master of Elibank, the chief liberal whip, and William Abraham, a member of the house of commons for the Rhonda division of Glamorganshire, who is the son of a working collar and himself closely identified with mining interests; nine barons, among the best known of whom is Charles Wright Macara, president of the cotton federation and 25 knights. The most likely to strike public attention among the new knights are Joseph Lyons, a well known caterer, for services in supporting the territorial movement, and Henry J. Wood, the orchestral conductor. Sydney Covill, keeper of prints and drawings in the British museum was also knighted.

Otherwise the list is not of striking interest. The rewards go to political workers, officials of various kinds and convent, on Jan. 6, three other young Lowell girls who entered the order a few months ago, will receive the holy habit at an imposing ceremony. These are Miss Rosana Lirette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lirette of Salem street; Miss Marie Louise Bergeron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hercule Bergeron of Merrimack street, and Miss Eva Bolsvert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bolsvert of Phoebe avenue.

NORTH CHELMSFORD

There was a large attendance at the meeting of Court Wannalancit, No. 171, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, held in the town hall at North Chelmsford yesterday afternoon.

The feature of the meeting was the election of officers which resulted as follows:

Chief ranger, Henry O. Miner; vice chief ranger, James P. Daley; recording secretary, George E. Stanley; financial secretary, Perle J. Conslantino; treasurer, John F. McManomlin; senior conductor, Alphonse Magnanti; junior conductor, George F. Jones; inside sentinel, Michael McPhillips; outside sentinel, Philip J. Hogan. Delegates to the annual convention, James B. McQuaid and Patrick S. Ward; alternates, John F. McManomlin and Owen F. McNally; trustees, Mrs. P. S. Ward, Miss Rosella Monahan and Mrs. Michael J. Walsh; court physician, Dr. James J. Hoban.

A committee of six, consisting of Patrick S. Ward, Henry O. Miner, James P. Daley, Mrs. Fred Gaudette, Mrs. P. S. Ward and Owen F. McNally, was appointed to have full charge of the public installation of officers, which will take place at some future date.

The new officers will be installed by the Merrimack degree staff of Haverhill, Court Lowell, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, of Lowell, was represented at the meeting by the chief ranger, George Enright, and recording secretary, Frank Foye.

At a meeting of the St. John's Total Abstinence society held yesterday morning the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Michael J. Scollan; vice president, James J. Riley; recording secretary, Sarahell Talbot; financial secretary, Archie Eordenu; treasurer, Arthur McEnaney; janitor, Reginald McAdoo; trustees, Edward La France, James P. Quigley and Reginald McAdoo. The installation of the new officers will take place a week from Thursday evening, under the direction of Deputy Michael J. Boyle of Lowell.

SHORTAGE OF $60,000

Veteran Bank Treasurer Was Placed Under Arrest

WESTFIELD, Jan. 2.—At a meeting of the trustees of the Westfield Savings bank, whose veteran treasurer, Velenus W. Crowson, was arrested Saturday night following the discovery of a shortage of nearly $60,000 in the bank's funds held at the banking rooms last night, Daniel F. Doherty, a vice-president and member of the board of trustees of the institution was selected to fill the office of treasurer until such time as a permanent treasurer is selected. Mr. Doherty is a prominent local manufacturer and political leader, and has been associated with the bank for a long time.

Preparations were also made by the trustees for meeting any emergency which might arise as a result of the announcement of the shortage and subsequent events. Offers of assistance have been received from other banking institutions and although no great run is expected depositors who desire to withdraw their accounts today when the bank opens for business will find the bank coffers filled and ready to meet their demands.

Yesterday the ministers in the churches of the town co-operated with the bank officials in their efforts to prevent a run to the extent of urging their parishioners to consider carefully before withdrawing their accounts. Particularly did the Rev. Francis Schneider, pastor of the Polish church, urge upon his congregation not to be hasty in action.

At the conference last evening the trustees discussed the situation at the bank at considerable length but declined to make any statement other than to announce the selection of Mr. Doherty as temporary treasurer and to again declare the stability of the bank.

THE NEW CHARTER

Was Discussed at a Meeting in Mathew Hall Yesterday

A large audience gathered in Mathew hall yesterday afternoon to hear discussions on the charter revision. Charles P. Murray, a prominent labor man in Lynn and City Solicitor G. M. G. Nichols of Haverhill were the speakers. They both told the story of their new city charters and they answered all questions put up to them.

A little after 3 o'clock Mr. Nichols called to order and made a brief introductory speech, in which he characterized the present Lowell charter as a ghost of the past and said that the draft of the proposed new charter would be offered to the press the latter part of the week so that the people could study its provisions and become acquainted with its details. Charles P. Murray of Lynn opened his speech by telling who he was and said he had for many years been identified with the labor movement in Lynn. He is an officer in a labor organization and president of the Wage Earner's club in Lynn, in which 7600 men are enrolled.

Mr. Murray was one of those prejudiced against the word commission when the charter revision movement started in Lynn. After studying the elective commission, he found that there was no comparison to be made between the appointive and elective forms of commission, the latter being something he could entirely approve. Mr. Murray spoke at length on the subject and was followed by City Solicitor Nichols of Haverhill who outlined with great clearness the features of the new Haverhill charter. He does not agree with the Lowell committee in making the commission of five and the school board of five entirely separate.

Mr. Nichols spoke at great length on the proposed charter and explained all the good the Haverhill charter has done. He summed up his arguments and then threw the meeting open for questioning. There was a chorus of queries by Lawrence Cummings, Harry C. Doherty, Richard Sykes and John S. Stratton.

FATALLY BURNED

Baby Was Playing With Matches in His Home

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—An infant, John D. Sullivan, aged 19 months, of 56 Tremont street, Charlestown, lost his life, and Driver Bartholomew Dowd of engine 26 was injured in the first fires of the new year in Boston.

Three different alarms were sounded yesterday morning, the first at three o'clock for a blaze in the building 35 Hartford street, occupied by Iluso

Bros., Inc., and it was while he was on his way to that that Dowd was thrown from his seat. He was not seriously hurt.

Andrew J. Keefe, a lodger in the house occupied by John E. Howard, 5 Maple place, South End, was overcome by smoke during a fire in that house and removed to the City hospital. Laddermen Lucas and Kellher of ladder 17 rescued Keefe, who lay unconscious on his bed, which was afire. While he inhaled much smoke, he will recover, owing to the first aid work of the firemen.

The Sullivan child was playing with matches in his home and so severely burned that he died during the afternoon in the Relief station in Haymarket square.

The second fire, in point of time, was discovered at 5:30 yesterday morning in the building 62-64 Sudbury street, and an alarm was given from box 21. The fire brigade of the American house assisted the firemen and the blaze was extinguished with a loss of about $3000.

TWO POISONED

Girl and Her Fiance Victims of Cyanide

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 2.—That Miss Grace Blosser and her fiance, Charles E. Twigg, died of cyanide poisoning was established yesterday by chemical analysis of the stomachs of the dead girl and man. Further than this little or no light has been thrown upon the mystery of the deaths of the two, whose bodies were found by the mother of the girl, seated upon the sofa in the parlor of the Blosser home. The theory of a double suicide is declared impossible by the family and friends of Miss Blosser and also by those who knew and last saw alive the man who was to have last evening made his wife.

The authorities are working upon the theory that murder may have been committed and are running down every clue pointing in that direction. Coroner Beall is authority for the statement that half an hour elapsed between the time of the discovery of the bodies and the notification of a physician or the notification outside of the Blosser family. The remainder of a box of candy and some chewing gum, found in the Blosser home, will be examined for traces of poison, but as all other members of the dead girl's family ate from the box of candy without suffering inconvenience, little is expected from this.

No bottle or other receptacle that could have contained the cyanide has yet been found by the authorities.

QUEEN INJURED

GOING TO KISS CHILDREN AT NEW YEAR

ROME, Jan. 2.—During the reception of the senators and deputies by King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena at the Quirinal yesterday it was noticed that the queen appeared to be suffering considerable pain. Her majesty explained that she had had an accident.

Just before midnight, not wishing the new year to begin without kissing the children, she was making her way to their rooms when she stumbled on the staircase and fell, injuring her left arm. The king rushed to the assistance of the queen, who assured him that it was nothing serious, but added, "I am sorry that new year's begins today." To this the king retorted, "Just as sorry that the old year finishes today with your fall; the new year begins well because you are not hurt."

A physician was called in and placed the arm in splints.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1910 was

15,976

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilotte, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 2, 1911. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

To our new city government and to all the friends of civic betterment we wish a happy and prosperous New Year.

MAKE THE RESOLUTIONS ANYHOW

Let the new year bring an advance to higher and better things. It is well to form good resolutions and to endeavor to keep them. If they are abandoned or forgotten after a while, that will show a lack of will power or else a lapse back to the old habits we had resolved to conquer. In any case it is better to make the attempt than not to make any effort to rise to higher standards of action and morals, higher ideals, higher accomplishments.

POPULARITY OF THE ICE PARK

The crowd on Shedd park yesterday afternoon, numbering perhaps 20,000 people, gave an indication of the vast popularity of a skating park and the benefit to the public of a first class park of this description. The skating was far from good, but such as it was, the multitude enjoyed it immensely.

Sometimes when the skating is good the park board should arrange a reception for Mr. Shedd at the park. That the people would give him a rousing reception is certain from the fact that a man mistaken for Mr. Shedd, a week ago Sunday, was the cynosure of all eyes and even cheered by the youngsters until he declared that he was not Mr. Shedd. The popularity of the park thus far under unfavorable conditions has demonstrated to the park board that an ice park in the winter is the most popular and beneficial feature, at least for the young people, yet attempted. Nor is this to be wondered at inasmuch as young people support several roller skating rinks throughout the year. They are delighted to get for nothing what they have been paying for and this they get at Shedd park when the weather conditions are favorable.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK AHEAD

The outlook for Lowell as a city for the coming year is very encouraging in nearly every aspect. Our industries are thriving, new industries are starting up, while old ones are expanding. For building operations the year just closed has outstripped the preceding years and the new year gives promise of great activity in this line. In all the big factories there is a transition from steam to electric power, each factory planning to produce its own electricity. The big water wheels that formerly drove wheels, turning big shafts, will hereafter drive wheels that will produce electricity. In this change there will be a saving in the production of power, together with the elimination of much of the disagreeable work incident to the application of steam power. This is but one step onward. There are a great many others in progress in the direction of improved machinery, finer goods and as a result more successful business.

During the coming year, we expect to see a new charter adopted, a new public hall and a contagious hospital constructed. The great Y. M. C. A. building will be built on the Huntington hall lot, while the other buildings of a miscellaneous character, including churches, business blocks and tenement property will undoubtedly be very numerous. We have elected what should prove a very progressive city government, one that much is expected of and in which we hope the people will not be disappointed.

What is the duty of the hour? It is to drop all pessimism, to go ahead with the problems of providing first class government at the lowest possible cost and the results are sure to be satisfactory. Mayor Meehan during the year 1911 will have a heavy responsibility. He will be impetioned by office seekers of all kinds but they should realize that the mayor's power to find places for the needy is very limited and that in a vast majority of the cases he is powerless to meet the demands of the place hunters.

To the young men who have made up their minds that the city owes them a living through politics, we would say—do not wait for a city job. You may be gray haired before you get it, or you may not get it at all. Perhaps there is no more useless or mischievous class in the city than that composed of disgruntled candidates for office who cannot get what they want. There are scores of them who do little or nothing else than promoting as best they can their chances of landing a political office in the future. If they would subside or go to work when turned down, there would be little cause for complaint. But where they persist in remaining idle unless elected to office, the case becomes quite serious. It indicates what the people have to contend with in municipal elections.

But the men elected to office must not allow themselves to be disturbed by this element, although it pursues the men who are in office like an avenging Nemesis. In spite of this and other difficulties the future prospect for our city is very hopeful and upon the shoulders of the men who today took the oath of office, rests the responsibility of making this a red letter year in the history of our city, for business prosperity, for the peace, happiness and general well being of every class in our cosmopolitan community.

FOR A NON-PARTISAN TARIFF COMMISSION

The Boston chamber of commerce is arranging for a big delegation of business men from New England to attend the annual convention of the National Tariff Association, to be held at the New Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C., January 11-12. The association favors the elimination of the tariff question from politics by having it placed in the hands of a non-partisan commission. Such a disposal of this subject would be of vast benefit to the country, provided the right kind of commission were secured. The New England banquet on the evening of January 11 will have speakers of national repute, including senators and representatives. This standpoint republicans favor the tariff commission which is strictly partisan. It is not the kind of commission that would take the tariff out of politics. Rather would it keep the tariff in politics and use it to promote republican ascendancy in the government.

SEEN AND HEARD

HOME BUILDING

Home is not a thing of timber, brick and mortar, laid and stone. Built by plan with saw and hammer. For man's dwelling place alone.

Home of finer stuff is built—Human hearts and love poured free; Human thoughts and deeds of kindness, I for thee and thou for me.

Home is where the heart is, be it Palace grand or simple cot; All the wealth of all the nations Without love may build it not. —New England Homestead.

THE BLUFFERS

"How much do you want for your First Street lot?"

Said a real-estate man to me. I looked as if I were lost in thought, and then I replied: "Let's see: Black's sold last year at fifty the foot;

So, without any algebra, that should put My figures at sixty now, I guess. Or a trifle more, or a trifle less."

I was anxious to sell at fifty straight Or I might have dropped down to forty.

Oh, yes, I'm a bit of a bluffer, it's true; What sort of a bluffer are you?"

"And what do you know about railroad rates?"

The man with a bald brow said, "For you have traveled through all the states."

And have heard a good deal and read."

"The railroad lines," I wisely replied, "Are the lines with which our trade is tied."

And the wretches who take these rates set New knots in the bonds under which we fret."

But now, I remember, I once rode free And forgot that the road rebated me. Oh, yes, I'm a bit of a bluffer, it's true; How much of a bluffer are you?"

"So you went to hear Siegfried and found a flut?"

Said a classical friend one day, "I'm sure your impressions accord with mine."

But tell me in your own terse way, "And 'Oh, the tone-color beats belief'."

And oh, "dynamics," and oh, "motif!" And "clair-obscur," how finely ab-

And la-la-la, and oh, well, what's the use?"

For all that I understand in the play Was that dippy, old dragon of papier-mache."

Oh, yes, I'm a bit of a bluffer, it's true; What sort of a bluffer are you?"

"Should the senior senator be returned?"

Said a newspaper man to me, "It's as rotten a rascal as ever burned."

I cried, "May I quote?" asked he, "Oh, no, I replied, 'if you're going to quote."

Just remark that his friends regret to note That the exigencies of the party case Indicate that he shouldn't re-enter the race."

For the senator sometime may possibly be interviewed by a newspaperman about me!"

Oh, none of these cases may quite fit you. But what sort of a bluffer are you?" —Edmund Vance Cooke.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

The next speaker's full name is James Beauchamp Clark. When he went out into the world he discovered that Clark was the sixth most common name in America, and that James was nearly as prevalent as John or the meekles. James B. also was curiously numerous, and James B. Clark far from unusual. In the young man's town was a man of that name who used to get his letters and throw them away. This was very annoying. So says James's Weekly, the future statesman dropped James, and became Beauchamp Clark. Beauchamp is a well known name out west. They pronounce it Beecham, like that of the Englishman who makes pills. Now, one of the incoming speaker's hobbies is accurate expression and it irritated him to be called Beecham, when he should have been called Beauchamp. With the accent on the shorn. Pains-taking investigation finally convinced him that only a Frenchman could say it properly, anyway, so he made up his mind to drop one of the syllables, and after due consideration he picked Beau as the one to go. Since then he has been plain Champ Clark, and is so designated almost everywhere. We hear of Representative Underwood, Congressman Payne, and others, but never of Representative or Congressman Clark. It is always Champ Clark, as if hyphenated, with accent on the Clark.

The latest anniversary is a "diamond wedding." At any rate, that term has been applied to the 75th wedding anniversary celebrated this year by a couple in Paris. They were married on Nov. 22, 1836, and the man and his wife are 85 and 92 years old, respectively.

D'Annunzio has really written a "mystery play," from the legends of Saint Sebastian, and Debussy is writing a pretentious, symphonic interlude, "music of the scene," and incidental choruses and dances for the four acts in which the piece runs. Ida Rubinstein, a Russian mime of queer pale and painted lips and a queerer temperament, will play the saint, and the "mystery" is announced for performance next June in Paris.

snappy dialogue and gorgeous surroundings. It tells a pretty story of college life, presenting many complications and humorous situations, all embellished with a host of catchy musical numbers. It has an exceptionally strong cast, including Miss Hazel Dunham, Miss Ollie Kirchner, Miss Alta Wilton, Mr. Bert La Mont, Mr. Jonathan Keefe, Sidney Craven and George F. Allen, with a sensational dancing and singing chorus of pretty girls, making up one of the strongest and best singing organizations of the season. "Boys and Girls" will be given one performance on Tuesday night, January 3, at the Opera House.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The sort of a bill which gives the right send-off to the New Year will be presented at the Merrimack Square theatre this week, beginning with this afternoon's performance.

Richmond, Hawley & Co. have what is said to be an unusually delightful offering in their little comedy, "The Siege of the Seven Vales."

Then there is Mac Monahan, the girl who sings the Irish songs. Lillian Gwynne is billed as an operatic lightning change artist.

Deerfoot is a juggler and an Indian juggler to boot, as he is a graduate of Carlisle.

The Knickerbocker Three are a New York trio with a lot of new song hits. The best and newest moving pictures will also be on the bill.

THEATRE VOYONS

There has not been for some time a stronger or more gripping subject shown on the screen than "The Adventures of a Girl."

The Theatre Voyons bill today. Its story of the plighting of a beautiful woman and her defeat by accident is a thrilling one, acted in a most realistic manner and staged with the greatest of care.

Everyone has read of the European trip of the American fleet of battleships and in one of the subjects today a very fine series of views of the fleet as it steamed up the English channel is shown. A laughable comedy and a pleasing sentimental story picture complete a great bill.

COLONIAL THEATRE

The headline act for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is Pearl Tangley, known as the mental marvel. This woman is an Egyptian mind reader. As an added attraction Manager Marcus has engaged Birnie, the great hand-out king and a jolly breaker who has appeared in all of the leading vaudeville houses in this country.

Others on the bill are Price-Bohrman & Co. in a dramatic sketch and Annie Russell, clever singer and dancer. A varied assortment of moving pictures will also be shown.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

A brand new show will be given at this popular theatre today and a big bill for little prices is always the rule here.

Wm. Hackett & Co. appear in a bright comedy sketch, "The Two Doctors," and Alfred and Pearl give a European novelty act that will be sure to please all the pieces will be up to date as this house makes a specialty of the very latest films.

DANCING PARTY

HELD IN THE TOWN HALL IN BILLERICA

A "Cinderella" dancing party was held in the town hall in Billerica Saturday night under the auspices of the pupils of Mrs. L. B. Perrin. There were about 50 couples on the floor while many occupied seats in the gallery and around the hall.

Music for dancing was furnished by Lavigne's orchestra and the officers of the party were: Manager, Ernest H. Weston; aids, Mr. Ralph Messer, Mr. Robert Bull, Mr. Francis Lyons.

A pair of slippers was given to the young lady having the smallest foot, who proved to be Miss Colby of East Billerica. There were people from Lowell, Woburn, and Boston present.

Miss Elsie Casey and Mr. Francis Lyons were leaders in the Rose cotillon, followed by 20 couples, the young ladies carrying long ropes of pink roses. The favors were pink slippers with the order of dances printed on them.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Arthur W. Gardner, formerly of this city but now of Sanbornville, N. H., and Miss Theodora H. Atwood of Ayer, were united in marriage yesterday by Rev. E. A. Greene, pastor of the Grace Episcopal church.

The ceremony took place at the pastor's residence, 235 Stevens street. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Gardner, parents of the bridegroom, and Miss Marshall of Boston, a cousin of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Gardner will live in Ayer.

PROVENCHE-SIMONEAU

Mr. Ernest Provencier of Montreal and Miss Louise Simoneau of this city were married yesterday at St. Joseph's rectory, Rev. Fr. Brillard, O. M. I., officiating. The witnesses were Victor Provencier and Armand Simoneau.

NEW MEDICAL COMPOUND

A chemist who was convinced that the old method of taking internal medicines for skin troubles was wrong, discovered that an extract from a particular tree was good for the skin. This important vegetable extract, by a method of special treatment with other healing ingredients, forms the product known as Cadum. Since its introduction Cadum has cured many cases of eczema and other unsightly, irritating and distressing skin diseases after other remedies had failed.

Cadum also has been used with great success at once, and begins healing the first time it is applied. It is also good for pimples, blotches, hives, tetter, itch, acne, herpes, scaly skin, psoriasis, ringworm, rash, sores, chafings, eruptions, itching piles, scurvy, scabs, etc. Many of the results obtained by the use of Cadum may be truly called wonderful.

THE NOBLER LIFE

Interesting Address By Henry George, Jr.

Henry George, Jr., congressman-elect from the 17th New York district, addressed a fair sized audience at the First Trinitarian church yesterday afternoon on the subject, "The Nobler Life," in the first of a series of afternoon meetings to be addressed by famous laymen.

Mr. George opened his discourse with a story of two Christian missionaries in a Japanese village, who met on the road a poor and aged woman carrying a bundle of fags. "Are you a Christian woman?" asked the Japanese woman. They answered, "Yes." The old woman tossed them a small coin, and said, "Give this to your God, and ask him that he make the burdens of the poor a little bit lighter."

"That," said Mr. George, "seems to me the cry of our age, the cry of our civilization, whether it be in the Occident or in the Orient. And why is it so? Has not God Almighty done his share of this business? There is enough here. A philosopher, Benjamin Franklin, estimated that if there was anything like a fair distribution of wealth as produced in his time, only four hours' work would be necessary for the average man to give to all the comforts of life. Dozens of multiplying powers have been added to the productive powers of men since then. Per capita, we are producing far more than we were then; but this business of poverty has been creeping on us. In this magnificent city, there are little children working in the mills. Is that necessary? I do not think so; and I am going to give you a little power to protect against this sort of thing. On one hand we have multi-millionaires, and on the other we have poverty that takes away the Christian instincts, that makes men curse God. I think that men were made to see the benevolence of the Creator. I think there is something out of joint with our times, and I think it is the business of our citizens to find out what that something is. If we are producing so much wealth, why are things as they are?"

"I believe that it comes through the taking into the hands of some people, things that they do not themselves create. I think it comes from some power in the law—something that all of us are responsible for."

Mr. George then referred to the monopolies, and said: "There are the public highways. We give our transportation privileges, our communication of all kinds, our water pipes, our gas pipes, our electrical supplies, to private companies, private individuals. These things are necessary to life. To give to any body of individuals the right to set up toll gates upon public highways is to give the power to rob the people."

"But more absorbing than that, is the land monopoly. This may seem far away to some of you. But show me the man, woman or child that can do without land, and I will show you a discomfited spirit. God Almighty owns the land, and he gave it for all of us—not some of us. Give me the land, and you can have any kind of government you want, but you do what I say, or get out. I am master, if I own the land."

"James were put the whole burden of taxation upon land values. It would tax the land into use. It would make the land grabber let go. 'Make conditions so that men find it easier to get a living, and you make them live a nobler life.' Make better physical conditions and you make it possible to develop the mental nature; and out of this comes the development of the spiritual nature. Bring about conditions where it is possible to get something like a square deal, and you will bring about the nobler life."

The great trend of things is toward the equal rights, toward the social justice. In Russia, Tolstoy stood against the war for years, and they dared not touch him. He wrote against the church standing with the imperial purple, and he was excommunicated. They burned his books and imprisoned him; they circulated them, but they dared not touch Tolstoy.

"Why not put in prison the man who writes the books? but they paid no attention. Why? because the people of Russia believed in Tolstoy. 'I believe we are coming to an order of things where there is freedom in the affairs of men. That brings all together, and that men are coming to a nobler life. To get that nobler life, we have got to act like nobler men. We have got to do it ourselves. If we do it, then this world will afford the nobler life indeed.'"

THE C. Y. M. L. WILL HOLD ELECTION OF OFFICERS NEXT SUNDAY

The members of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum of St. Patrick's church met yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance and much business was transacted. Six new members were admitted and four applications for membership were received. The financial secretary submitted a report which showed that the finances of the organization are in a good condition.

The election committee reported that arrangements were being made for the election of officers on communion Sunday, January 8. Already there are quite a number of candidates in the field for the various places. All candidates must hand their names to this committee before January 5, it was stated.

The committee on athletics reported that the gymnasium class is well under way and that it is one of the best attended classes in the history of the society. Much routine business was transacted, after which remarks were made by former President P. Harrington; John F. Murphy and Frank J. Collins.

THE C. Y. M. L. WILL HOLD ELECTION OF OFFICERS NEXT SUNDAY

The members of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum of St. Patrick's church met yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance and much business was transacted. Six new members were admitted and four applications for membership were received. The financial secretary submitted a report which showed that the finances of the organization are in a good condition.

The election committee reported that arrangements were being made for the election of officers on communion Sunday, January 8. Already there are quite a number of candidates in the field for the various places. All candidates must hand their names to this committee before January 5, it was stated.

The committee on athletics reported that the gymnasium class is well under way and that it is one of the best attended classes in the history of the society. Much routine business was transacted, after which remarks were made by former President P. Harrington; John F. Murphy and Frank J. Collins.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS

Delivered By Mayor Meehan on
His Induction to Office

HON. JOHN F. MEEHAN.

He Makes Many Recommendations in the Line of Progress; Counsels Economy in Every Department and Favors a Commission to Consider Department Incomes and Handling of Same—Wants the Street Railway Company Help Maintain Bridges for Their Heavy Cars

Mayor Meehan's inaugural address, delivered at city hall this morning, was rather lengthy. Its main features summarized are as follows:—
Municipal economy and better department service, showing honesty, continuity and sincerity in administration, the prime essentials.
Our gross funded debt is $3,425,190, that of Cambridge $11,000,000, New Bedford $5,000,000, while our net debt is $2,395,105.
This spring our valuation will be $50,000,000, our assets $10,000,000.
Lowell in the last decade climbed from fifth to fourth place in the cities of Massachusetts, but Lynn, Lawrence and New Bedford showed a greater advance.
Of our total population but 15,000 are registered voters, while only about 12,000 exercise the franchise.
We should start a campaign for the general advancement of Lowell in a business sense and another for widening the ranks of citizenship.

The Board of Trade should send out a folder, setting forth the advantages offered by our city for industrial purposes and should advocate a "made in Lowell" label for goods manufactured here.
The board should also investigate complaints of business men on the service of quasi public corporations, such as the gas, telephone, electric light and transportation companies. The city government will co-operate in any such movement.
The school committee might make a study of how to provide training in citizenship for our non-citizen residents of foreign birth, to the end that they may become good citizens and assist in every progressive movement.

In the year before us we are facing a probable decrease of $25,000 in revenue, due to the reduction in license fees under the bar and bottle act. There will be additional demands for appropriation on account of the contagious hospital, and possibly other undertakings.
The present city government should at least equal the record of last year's government, which did not issue a dollar of funded debt for current expenses and at the same time made many expensive permanent improvements out of the treasury funds.

Recommendations
The mayor favors:— Provision for public baths all the year round. The park department should have control of any expenditure for the purpose.
An appropriation for the purchase of land for small playgrounds in congested centers.
Loans for additional sewer and smooth paving work.
The city collector investigating how the city council can compel the street railway companies to bear a share of the expense of maintaining bridges to accommodate their heavy cars.

A commission made up of city treasurer, city auditor, chairman of board of assessors and possibly city clerk, to investigate questions of departmental income and to suggest changes and checks in handling of the same.
Prompt action on selection of site and construction of a public hall, securing expression of public opinion on same if possible.
Proper observance of the 75th anniversary of Lowell's incorporation as a city should be planned by city council for early summer.
Does not favor single chamber and small governing body suggested for the new charter movement.

no misunderstanding, I propose to enunciate a few.

All Year Bath

I believe that we owe it to the people of Lowell to provide an all the year round bathhouse and gymnasium. The city is woefully lacking in accommodations of this sort. Even our summer bathing is not conducted under proper conditions, but our failure to make any provisions for the cold months of the year is criminal. Public building in the past has always been blocked by the matter of selecting a site, and the natural ambition of each section to have such a structure in its own locality. Let us show during the coming year that we are able to handle this matter in a business fashion. This building I believe should be as near the center of congestion as possible, and I would like that, when the time comes to provide a loan, whether it is for $25,000 or $50,000, that the entire must be turned over to the park commission for the selection of site, the decision on the type of building and its maintenance after erection. Cities which have set up special bath commissions have not found the experiment a wholly happy one.

Small Playgrounds

The very excellent report of the park commission has made it fairly plain that we have made considerable steps towards a large central playground. The munificence of Mr. Shedd should be remembered by all citizens. There is a great need though for small neighborhood playgrounds for the accommodation of the smaller children, many of whom cannot be trusted to make the journey to the larger field. From these I believe that boys over a certain age who are able to go the greater distance should be excluded. These smaller breathing places should be equipped with swings and other play apparatus. All this does not mean any very elaborate expenditure, for, to my mind, a lot of even 5000 square feet in the center of dwelling congestion is better than none at all. I would like to have the appropriation committee consider the advisability of making a loan of $25,000 for the purchase of such sites. Purchases could have been made ten years ago cheaper than today and can be made cheaper today than ten years from now. Something must be done, and there is the chance that once the city goes at this work systematically that citizens or corporations will make contributions either in money or land for this purpose.

Debt and Loans

We start this new year with a borrowing capacity of $494,206.07. This is an increase of some $133,000 over the amount available last year. This very increase should cause us to be careful. During the year just closed we issued a hundred thousand less funded city ordinary debt than was cancelled, a very good showing. If possible, our aim should be each year to issue a smaller amount than is cancelled. It must be realized that no reduction of the city debt and of the annual sinking fund charges can be had unless a course of this kind is continued. The privilege of incurring a funded debt is the greatest enjoyed by the city government. Our trouble has not been the issue of debt itself but its issue for improper purposes, namely, the paying of current expenses. There are now important undertakings which should be started in Lowell and for which debt issue is proper and justifiable, but the taxpayers as a whole should be taken into the confidence of the city government, so there will be

Smooth Paving and Sewers

Loans will have to be issued for additional sewer and smooth paving work. The expenditures already made for paving have won the approval of citizens in general. The cost of merchandising goods in a city like Lowell is apt to increase out of proportion by reason of our failure to provide a proper traffic surface. The extra dollar tax which poor driveways impose on the merchants is taken out of the consumer in the end. At least $50,000 should be put into this new work and it might be well for the committee to consider the adopting of some plan which would guarantee the expenditure of a smaller amount for ten years to come or until the work is completed.

The sewer work is of course a matter of public necessity.

Public Service Charges

Lowell in common with many other cities is suffering from the burdens imposed on it by reason of the use of the streets by the public service corporations. Many of these through franchises in the first instance with but a minimum of cost and as years have progressed by legislative amendments of one sort or another, they have gradually shifted from the shoulders of their stockholders to the cities. Many charges which do not belong there. We all have a general acquaintance of the way in which the Locks and Canals company have carried on this campaign. In addition the street railway companies in many cases are not living up to the conditions regarding their right of way and we are being called on to make special outlay for the erection and maintenance of bridges to meet the special requirements of their heavy weight cars. It is important that we should know just where we stand on this and I have in mind to require of the city collector that he make an immediate study of conditions and a report which will be transmitted to you gentlemen as to what can be done either by ordinance or statute to bring about a change. Inasmuch as it is likely bills towards equalization of these rates will be introduced in the new legislature the Lowell representatives should give the matter special attention in order that the rights of Lowell may be properly cared for.

Departmental Income

During the past year there has come to my attention at various times that the volume of our departmental income was woefully small and that its handling suggested many chances for improvement. The entire city income from all sources for 1900 was only $417,000, and the total income in 1909 was only $441,000. But even this showing is far from satisfactory when the figures were examined. In 1900 for example the corporation tax as received was only $85,000, while in 1909 we received $105,000, an increase of $20,000. When that increase is subtracted it will be found that the increase in income outside of this tax was only $1,000, which is not a satisfactory showing by any means. The city in the course of a year extends through its departments many services which are in the nature of special favors for the few. This fact has been recognized by the charging of fees. The expenses in many cases of giving this service have increased, and it would seem as if some changes should be made accordingly. The study and investigation of this problem calls for a certain amount of expert knowledge and for that purpose I am anxious to co-operate with the city council in the creation of a commission to consist of the city treasurer, the city auditor, the chairman of the board of assessors, and possibly the city clerk for the investigation of the whole matter of departmental income. Such a report should not only contain suggestions of such changes as are necessary, but in addition should report any system of checks for the handling of the same which may be required. This commission should have the right to call on the city collector for assistance at all times. Inasmuch as the men named are all city employees no special additional cost should be entailed by reason of this investigation.

Huntington Hall

The need for a public hall becomes more pressing every day. For that reason the delay is harder to bear. It is important that something be done in short order to bring a settlement of this problem. I will not attempt here to review what has brought about the delay, we are rather looking for the best means to bring us the hall and I will be glad to co-operate in any way possible. Our sole purpose is naturally to give to Lowell people the type of hall they want and where the majority want it, but it is well now if some means can be found for securing a straight out public expression on the location.

The 75th Anniversary

This year Lowell observes the 75th anniversary of her incorporation as a city. It is proper that the event should be noted in a dignified manner. The city council I have no doubt will later take up the formulation of definite plans to that end. I would like to suggest that it may be considered advisable to have the observance in the early summer rather than in the spring when the date occurs.

The central feature of the observance I believe should be a public meeting under the auspices of the city government to be held in some suitable place at which a native son of Lowell should be the orator and at which a proper musical program would be provided. The schools also should have some special observance in the way of exercises in which the children would take part. The object for an extraordinary day made in Lowell has interested me and would I think be of value. The city cannot do more than lend its endorsement to that project, for it should be carried on by Lowell merchants.

The City Charter

The right of the people of the city to change their form of government cannot be questioned by any elective officer. Yet from my experience as mayor and as a member of the legislature I think it is well to call the attention of the people as a whole to one positive fact that the salvation of a city cannot be accomplished by mere legislative enactment. It is men and measures, which make a municipality.

The suggested plan for the abolition of the popular chambers of the city government and the substitution of a small commission does not appeal to me as the right step. It tends to a government of the few to the exclusion of the many and is undemocratic, using that phrase in its broadest sense. In conclusion Mayor Meehan alluded to the inspiration furnished by some of the great men of past city governments who worked for the city's future for us as we must now work for posterity, as we must now work for posterity. Our obligation, said his honor, is now to the whole people of Lowell. Times and methods have changed, but the man who does his duty with sincerity need have no fear of the final judgment to be passed upon his actions. Let each of us be true to his ideals and there need be no fear that we will not be true to the best interest of Lowell.

A NEW STATUE

For the Grotto, Was Blessed

St. Jean Baptiste church was filled to its doors yesterday afternoon for the blessing of the statue of Notre Dame de Lourdes which is to adorn the grotto on the orphanage grounds. The children who had made their first communion in the morning in the orphanage chapel, entered the church wearing wreaths upon their heads and singing the "Magnificat." They renewed their baptismal promises and were consecrated to the virgin previous to the blessing of the statue, and after its being blessed, sang a hymn to Notre Dame de Lourdes, offering her the wreaths they wore.
Rev. Fr. LeFebvre, O. M. I., chaplain of the orphanage, spoke on the occasion. The children received in the morning and Rev. Fr. Gratton, O. M. I., also addressed the children after performing the ceremony of consecration to the virgin. Rev. Fr. Watelle, O. M. I., delivered a third address on the devotion to Notre Dame de Lourdes, and blessed the statue. The ceremony closed with a solemn benediction, at which Rev. Frs. Watelle, O. M. I., Gratton, O. M. I., and Queltette, O. M. I., officiated.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The following officers have been elected by Court General Dimon: For electors of America: Chief Ranger, Dennis J. Murphy; sub chief ranger, John F. Murphy; recording secretary, William J. Hartley; financial secretary, Stephen Brock; treasurer, Patrick Owens; senior woodward, Mr. Kennedy; junior woodward, Michael Monahan; senior beadle, Mr. Mulligan; junior beadle, Mr. Boulger; trustees, Messrs. Quinn and Currier; lecturer, John Cullen; physician, Dr. Edward J. Murphy.
At the meeting 10 new members were admitted. The by-laws committee reported and it was voted to accept the report. At the next meeting, January 13 the recently elected officers will be installed. The exercises will be followed by a smoke-talk.

A SUCCESSFUL RECITAL

A pleasant pianoforte recital was given by the pupils of Edward Everett Adams at his studio in Odd Fellows temple in Middlesex street Saturday night. Among those who contributed to the program was John M. Brown, who appeared in baritone numbers. The pupils who appeared were: Freda T. Kenny; Gertrude M. Kenney; Mildred Ward; Madeline C. Gillick; Grace L. Holdsworth; Eleanor D. Allen; Raymond T. Wildo; Joseph N. Sleeper; Raymond D. Sullivan and Francis P. Gillick.

ANOTHER MAMMOTH PURCHASE OF WALL PAPERS COMES TO LOWELL

This is a Big Purchase for Spot Cash of the Entire Warehouse Stock of 1910 Wall Papers, from one of the largest wall paper mills in the east, left over from the 1910 years' business and was lumped off to our Syndicate Headquarters at 26, 70 and 120 per roll, according to lots, which we are satisfied was about the cost of the raw coloring alone that is used on the paper. Our Lowell Department received one carload of this purchase and will close out same to the public of Lowell at 35, 95 and 160. The entire carload, absolutely, must be disposed of at once. Mind you, we are not telling you this stock is now 1911 stock, but we are telling you that if you are willing to buy 1910 patterns, you can buy papers worth up to $1.00 per roll for 25 per cent to 40 per cent of their real value. Mind you, this stock must absolutely be disposed of at once in order that it won't interfere with our Regular Annual Spring Sale of $25,000 worth of New Styles which is inaugurated on the first of every February. Extra help for this big MILL END SALE, but nevertheless, we suggest trading as early in the day as possible. Remember, this big purchase was made possible only through our Syndicate Membership Association.

WAS DESPONDENT

Man Committed Suicide
by Inhaling Gas

BROOKFIELD, Jan. 2.—Edward J. Moulton, a prominent citizen and shoe manufacturer of this town, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by inhaling illuminating gas.

He was found by the watchman, William Smith, in the office of the factory, on Central street, lying on a lounge with the end of a rubber tube, which was connected with a gas jet, in his mouth.

Life was not quite extinct when he was found and Dr. L. T. Newhall was called, but failed to revive him.

Mr. Moulton was a native of Dover, N. H., was 54 years old and came to Brookfield 25 years ago. He was the managing partner of the Foster-Moulton shoe company, having charge of the factory here. He was a past master of Hyden lodge, A. F. and A. M.

No cause for his act is known, except that for some time past he seemed to be mentally depressed. He was a widower and leaves three sons, Guy of Wallingford, Conn., a teacher; Roy of Brookfield and Charles, a student at Amherst college.

Medical Examiner Dr. E. W. Norwood of Spencer was called, and said it was a case of suicide by illuminating gas.

IN POLICE COURT

Unlucky Number of
Offenders Up Today

There were just 13 offenders arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning, all excepting one being charged with drunkenness. None of the cases took up much time and the session proved to be a comparatively short one for a Monday.

Had No Home

Charles J. Stevens called at the police station Saturday night and told Captain Atkinson that he wanted to be locked up. He said he had no home, his feet were sore and he did not care what happened to him so long as he had a place to rest and something to eat. When he appeared in court this morning he looked as though he had lost all ambition, and the court decided to send him to the state farm at Bridgewater.

Ordered to Leave Town

Thomas Gagan, who hails from Wilton, N. H., was arrested one night last week and released the following morning, inasmuch as it was his first offense. He was arrested again Saturday and in court this morning he pleaded for a chance to go to Wilton. The court imposed a state farm sentence, but later suspended it for 48 hours in order to give Gagan a chance to get out of the city.

Other Offenders

John Hayes, who belongs in Franklin, N. H., was charged with being drunk and after being found guilty was sentenced to the state farm.

Alice Murtha was sentenced to one month in jail, and Joseph Paquin was given a suspended sentence to the state place.

Ovilia Plouffe was fined $6 and seven first offenders were fined $2 each. Six simple drunks were released.

FUNERALS

TRUMBELL.—The funeral of Mrs. Betsy Trumbell took place from the home of her son, Wells F. Trumbell, 101 Westford street, yesterday afternoon. Services were conducted by Rev. N. W. Matthews, pastor of the

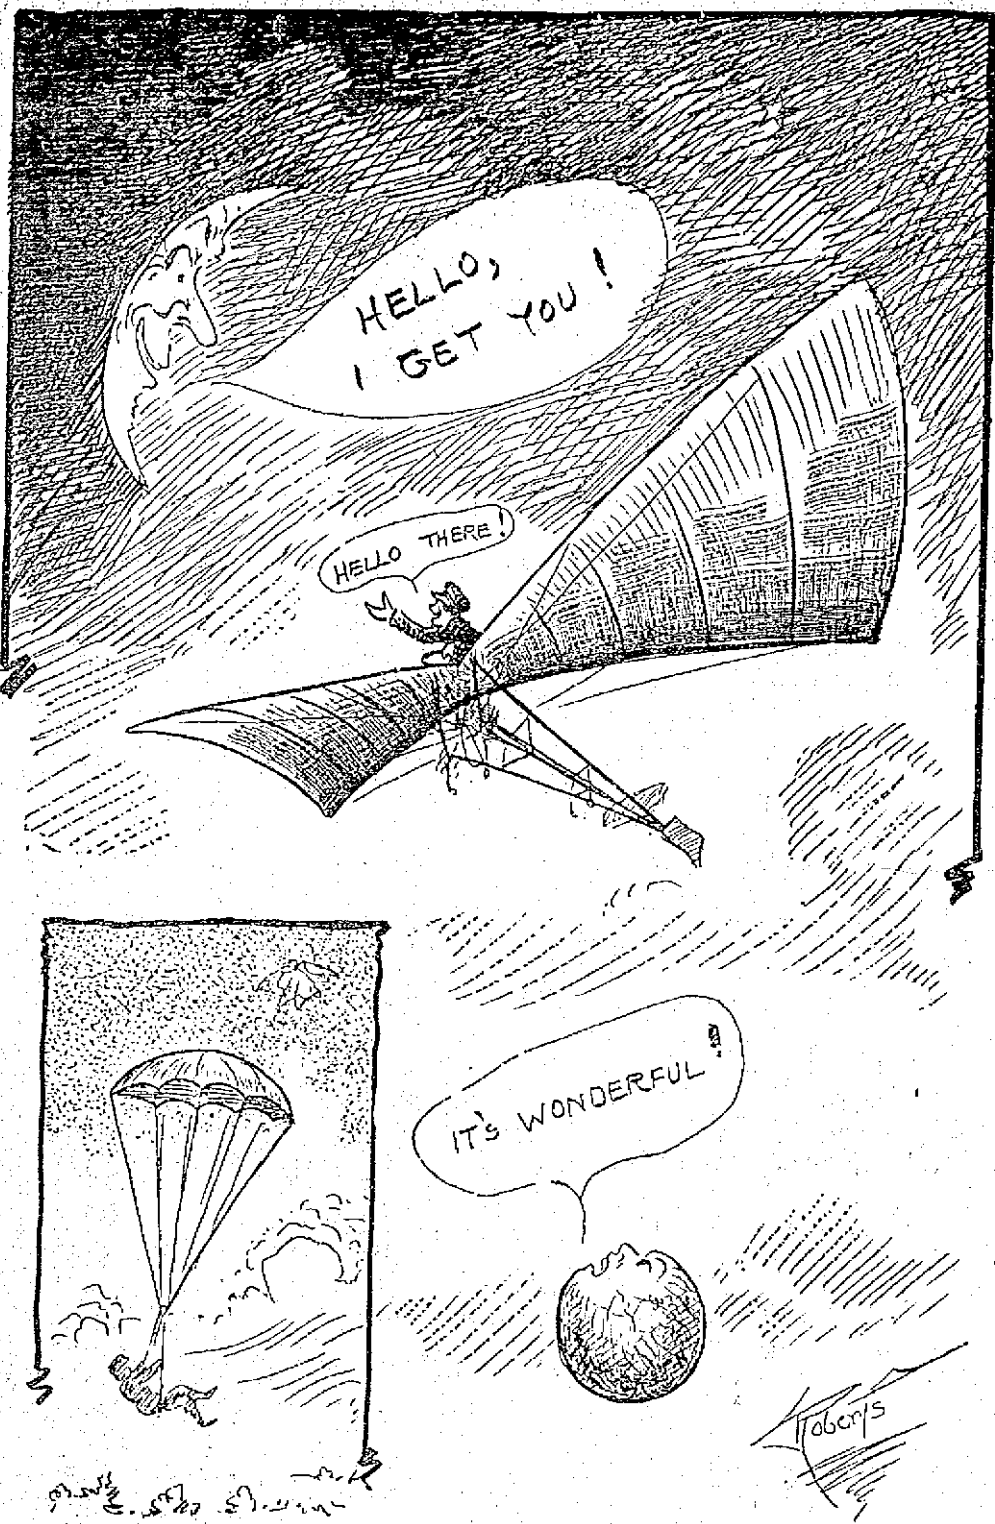

Gorham Street Methodist church. Mrs. Lillian Salmon Spence and William A. Severance sang, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," and "Go Bury Thy Sorrow." The bearers were: Edwin A. Howe, Charles W. Bell, Vincent Coulam and Fred Rolfe. There were many floral tributes, including the following: Pinks, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur A. Cheney; wreath of ivy leaves and sweet peas, Dr. and Mrs. C. T. Clifford; pinks, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lee; callas and pinks, grand-and Mrs. Wells F. Trumbell; sheaf of wheat with pinks, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Bell; pinks, William A. Severance; violets, Leslie M. Burrage; pinks, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Wheeler and Mrs. M. E. Trumbell, and narcissus, Miss Ethel Bartlett. Burial was in the Edison cemetery. J. A. Weinbeck was the funeral director.

CRAIGIE.—The funeral of Frank C. Craigie, who died at Breckinridge, Colo., December 25, took place Saturday afternoon from the Edison cemetery chapel. Rev. R. A. Greene, D. D., was the officiating clergyman. The bearers were: Robert J. Gilmore, W. D. F. McKissock, Harry C. Hill and John A. Weinbeck. Appropriate selections were given by Mrs. W. S. Goodall and Mrs. Hallie Whitney. There were many floral offerings. J. A. Weinbeck was the funeral director.

JEFFREY.—The funeral of Wallace Hamilton Jeffrey took place yesterday afternoon from the home of his parents, GELINEAU.—The remains of the late Vital Gelineau were laid at rest this morning.

The funeral took place at 9:30 o'clock from his late home, 108 Acton street. The cortege proceeded to St. Joseph's church, where a solemn high mass was sung at 10 o'clock by Rev. Fr. Quellet, O. M. I., assisted by Rev. Fr. Arthur Bernache, O. M. I., as deacon and Rev. Fr. Amyot, O. M. I., sub deacon. The choir under the direction of Mr. Frank Gourdeau rendered Perreault's harmonized mass, Mr. Joseph A. Bernard presiding at the organ. The solos were sustained by Arthur Lovelle, Amedee Archambault, Frank Gourdeau, E. J. Laroche, and Joseph A. Bernard. At the offertory Mr. Frank Gourdeau sang "O Messem Passionis," and while the body was being borne from the church, the choir rendered "De Profundis."

A delegation of branch St. Marie, A. C. F. of which deceased was a member, escorted the body to the cemetery. They were Amable Lacombe, Honore Pronovost, Arthur Dumont and Eugene Coutu. The bearers were three sons of the deceased, Israel, Cesar and Adelard Gelineau, and three sons in law, Joseph Plante, Simon Lapanne and Alexandre Pelletier. Burial was in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery, Rev. Fr. Watelle, O. M. I., reciting the committal prayers at the grave. Funeral was in charge of Undertaker Amedee Archambault.

L'HEUREUX.—The funeral of Marie Louise Philomene L'Heureux took place this morning from her late home, 630 Merrimack street. A solemn high mass of requiem was sung at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock by Rev. Fr. Gratton, O. M. I., assisted by Rev. Fr. Denzot, O. M. I., sub deacon. The choir under the direction of Mr. Frank Gourdeau rendered Perreault's harmonized mass, Mr. Joseph A. Bernard presiding at the organ. A delegation of Notre Dame de Lourdes society, which consisted of Miss Adelaide Poirier, Miss Ida Mahe, Miss Marie Geoffrey and Miss Anna Blais escorted the body to the cemetery. The bearers were Amedee Guimond, Adelard Guimond, Albert Guimond, Joseph Guimond, Joseph Dion and M. Vallancourt. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, Rev. Fr. Watelle, O. M. I., reciting the committal prayers at the grave. Funeral was in charge of Undertaker Joseph Albert.

ALLEOTONE, the New Remedy for Colds and Grippe, Embodies an Interesting Principal

A COLD is due to lowered vitality. Everyone knows that.

But what is lowered vitality?

It is exactly this: Your body is built up of numberless tiny cells which are constructed of certain chemical elements. When the supply of some of these elements runs short, that form of lowered vitality results, which we call "a cold."

All the medicine you ever took was made from drugs that are foreign to the body. They are used because they set up a disturbance in the system which instantly tries to throw them off. True, the cure is often accomplished but the use of drugs has an evil effect on the system, and causes needless waste of vitality.

These statements sound radical. They are radical but true. Hundreds of physicians are prescribing ALLEOTONE for colds, pneumonia, and infectious conditions. Before your cold develops into something worse, get a bottle of ALLEOTONE. You will find it gives speedy relief with no unfavorable reaction.

At Druggists, 50c and $1.00 a Bottle.

ALLEOTONE cures colds by giving to the cells the food which they lack. And the signal of that lack is your cold.

ALLEOTONE cures exactly as water cures thirst.

You don't have any ipecac or calomel or camphor in your system. But every ingredient in ALLEOTONE is an ingredient of every part of your body.

ALLEOTONE is a cell-food—not a stimulant, except as food is a stimulant.

But after all, what interests you is not the principle of ALLEOTONE, but the fact that its use remedies colds and allied ailments more quickly than any other treatment. ALLEOTONE will make you absolutely safe from pneumonia and infectious diseases if taken in time, because it gives to the cells of the body exactly the nutrition they demand.

Sailors on Schooner Northland Depositors Made No Attempt to Withdraw Their Money

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—Racked from stem to stern by the terrific gale of Friday night, and with her sails torn to shreds and rigging carried away, the four-masted schooner Northland, the largest craft of its kind afloat, with Capt. Charles H. Saunders, his wife Josephine, and eleven thankful sailors was towed into Boston harbor early yesterday morning by the United States revenue cutter Gresham.

It was the fifth time this season that the staunch revenue cutter and her commander, Capt. P. H. Oberroth, and his brave crew had saved a vessel in distress.

With the worst gale of the winter blowing, the Northland was caught about thirty miles off Cape Cod Friday night in frigid weather and but for the pluck and daring of her captain, his wife and the members of the crew, the vessel would probably have been lost.

Acts of daring have been done by shipwrecked crews before, but the achievements of the brave crew of the Northland will hold a high place among them. For hours after a gale wave had stove in the hard pine cabin door, permitting tons of water to flood the elaborately fitted quarters of the captain, the men worked with might and main to clean up the wreckage in the cabin.

To Capt. Oberroth and Lieuts. Drake and Coffin and Gunner Carl Johansson and the crew of five men of the Gresham's surf boat great credit is due. In a heavy sea the surf boat was lowered with great difficulty and only after a hard battle did it reach the side of the distressed schooner and assist in righting things before the trip for Boston was made.

Yeoman service was also rendered by the life-saving crews from the Orleans and Nauset stations. The latter crew in getting its surf boat off swamped it. The water was emptied out and a second attempt was made, but the boat went down again, and so abandoning their own life boat the members of the Nauset crew went out with the crew of the Orleans station. Capt. James H. Charles commanded the Orleans life-saving boat and the Nauset crew was in charge of Capt. Abbott Walker of that station.

A LIVELY BLAZE

Was Caused by Overheated Stove

An overheated gas stove caused a lively blaze in a stable in the rear of the Lawton residence in Pawtucket street, nearly opposite Mt. Vernon street, shortly before six o'clock this morning. The fire was discovered before it had gained much headway, however, and soon was extinguished by the firemen.

The building was recently purchased by Joseph A. March, but it is understood that the final papers have not yet been passed.

For some unknown reason a lighted gas stove was left in the carriage shed of the stable. The stove got overheated and set fire to two barrels which were close by and then communicated to the woodwork of the building.

A passerby seeing the blaze rang in an alarm from box 28.

Saturday, January 7th, 1911. Is Quarter Day at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank.

WESTFIELD, Jan. 2.—The fears of the officials of the Westfield savings bank, that there might be a run on the institution as a result of the arrest of the treasurer of the bank, Velenus Crowson, for the alleged embezzlement of $60,000, were not realized when the bank opened for business this morning. A crowd of about 100 persons hung around the institution, but none of them appeared to be a depositor and it is believed that all in the crowd were drawn to the banking rooms out of mere curiosity to see what would take place.

The first depositor to enter the bank this morning was a resident of an adjoining town, who instead of withdrawing the funds credited to his account made an additional deposit of $1600. During the first two and a half hours that the bank was open today the deposits exceeded the withdrawals, according to the officials. Several clerks remained near the bank throughout the morning hours ready to advise their parishioners not to withdraw their funds. They remained several of the Polish and Italian depositors with the result that only a few of the foreigners withdrew their funds.

The trustees of the bank will hold a meeting tonight, at which time it is believed that a permanent treasurer will be elected to succeed Crowson. Mr. Crowson remained in seclusion at his home here today. His case will come up for a court hearing on Jan. 14.

SERIOUS INJURY BURNED TO DEATH

Man Was Trampled by Five Children Perished in Fire

HAVERHILL, Jan. 2.—Horace C. Moore is in a dangerous condition at the Hale hospital suffering from a fractured skull, a broken jaw and numerous other injuries as a result of being trampled upon by a horse.

Moore is a teamster, and as he was putting his horse up Saturday evening the animal became frightened, and when Moore tried to control him he was knocked down. The horse then began to prance about as Moore lay unconscious on the floor and the animal stepped upon the prostrate man's head and face several times before he was removed by people who were attracted to the scene.

At the hospital 55 stitches were necessary to sew up the lacerations on his face and head.

MAYOR PATCH IS IN FAVOR OF THE NEW CHARTER

GLOUCESTER, Jan. 2.—Mayor Patch and four aldermen were inducted into office at city hall today. Mayor Patch, in his inaugural address, declared that the first two years of city government under the new charter showed considerable progress and he pointed out that although the expenses of the past year were more than ever before the total debt had decreased. The mayor asked that a stricter watch be kept on all appropriations. He said that under the new charter business could be transacted more speedily.

FOUR MAYORS OF RHODE ISLAND CITIES WERE REINAUGURATED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 2.—The six cities of Rhode Island reinaugurated their city governments for the ensuing year today.

Four mayors were reinaugurated: Henry Fletcher in Providence, James Mullen in Woonsocket, Patrick Boyin in Newport, and Edward M. Sullivan in Cranston. All except Mayor Fletcher of Providence are democrats. In Pawtucket, a republican, Giles W. Easterbrooke, was inducted into office and in Central Falls F. L. Rattey, a democrat, took the oath as chief executive.

NEW YEAR PARTY AT OFFICE OF LOUIS WELER SATURDAY NIGHT

Louis Weller, the well known impresario and yeast man, entertained a party of friends, mostly well known musicians, at his office in Arch street Saturday night. A musical "watch" service was held and just as the old year was disappearing down the chimney of time, a trio, consisting of Messrs. James Lyons, Bob and Fred Lindsay sang Sullivan's impressive "Lost Chord" with fine harmony and effect. A toast to the New Year was then drunk after which refreshments were served.

"JOE" WESLEY

SAILOR LAD SPENT NEW YEAR AT HOME

Joseph Wesley, barber on the battleship Missouri which is now in dry dock at the Charlestown navy yard, spent New Year's day with his mother at Braintree, his first New Year's visit home in 19 years during which time he has been in every corner of the world.

COAL TEAMSTERS GIVEN AN INCREASE OF $1 A WEEK

LYNN, Jan. 2.—Two hundred coal teamsters employed by 24 concerns in this city were today granted an increase of one dollar a week, following demands made a month ago for an increase in wages of $1.50. This increase was granted after a series of conferences between representatives of the teamsters and the dealers. The wages of the men now range from $12 to $15.50 a week.

MAYOR CAHILL WAS INAUGURATED IN LAWRENCE TODAY

LAWRENCE, Jan. 2.—Mayor John C. Cahill, democrat, and a new city government were inaugurated at city hall this forenoon with the usual exercises. Prayer was offered by Rev. James O'Reilly. After the reading of the mayor's inaugural address, the city council held meetings to elect city officials.

TO CONTEST WILL

DR. GAY GOT ONLY $500 OUT OF $800,000 ESTATE

BURKELEY, Cal., Jan. 2.—Dr. Frederick Gay, who came from Harvard university three months ago to take charge of the department of paleontology at the University of California, has gone to Boston to contest the will of his late uncle, Benjamin W. Parker, a broker. Parker left an estate of $800,000, of which Dr. Gay received only $500. The bulk of the property was bequeathed in trust to Clark Parker of Pasadena, brother of the testator.

Officers and Pot-Hunters Engaged in a Battle

OSCEOLA, Ark., Jan. 2.—A fight brought about the "night rider" incident of Reelfoot Lake, Tennessee, which is about 15 miles north, prevails with regard to Big Lake. With the purchase of a tract of land by the hunting club, composed almost entirely of residents of other states and the leasing of the grounds, local hunters and fishermen resented what they regarded as an abridgement of their right to earn a livelihood. Recently the club's buildings were burned and United States deputy marshals began to patrol the preserve and warn trespassers. On Saturday indictments were returned by the Nye county grand jury against 41 persons charging illegal hunting and gambling. A United States marshal was arrested during the court proceedings, charged with carrying brass "knuckles." J. H. Acklin, game warden of Tennessee, is president of the Big Lake club.

THINGS YOU AND I HAVE TALKED ABOUT IN 1910

Read Here Again About the News Which Interested All Of Us During the Year

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

Like Matthew, the world sits "at the receipt of custom" at the end of an old year and the beginning of a new and takes account of what has occurred during the twelvemonth which has passed. It is the time of balance, of the measuring of advance and of retrogression in mundane affairs.

Unlike its predecessor, 1910 has not been marked by any one event standing out in the minds and imaginations of men as did the discovery of the north pole in 1899. No great discovery has been found, no great discovery has been made, unless, indeed, a certain widely heralded medical discovery by Professor Schulch of Germany "should prove the long sought specific for an evil which for centuries has baffled medical skill and research."

JANUARY.—Paris Threatened by Flood. Pinchot Dismissed.

In the initial month of the year the world's attention was held by the menace which water brought to one of the fairest of the earth's cities. Paris, "the city of light," the center of the world's gaiety and beauty and fashion, was inundated by the rising of the river Seine and its tributaries. For a week monuments and buildings suffered severe damage and were threatened with destruction. Before the waters sank they did damage to the extent of 1,000,000,000 francs, or $200,000,000.

January saw the removal of Gifford Pinchot, chief forester of the United States, by President Taft, who declared that the tree expert had violated an order of the chief executive. The dismissal marked one phase of the Pinchot-Ballinger dispute, which was a holdover from 1909. Of deaths in January probably the most notable were those of D. O. Mills, millionaire philanthropist; Joaquim Nabuco, Brazilian ambassador to the United States, and Cardinal Satolli. The British parliamentary elections resulted in a small Liberal-Laborite majority.

FEBRUARY.—Philadelphia's Bitter Labor Struggle.

In news interest the event of February was the beginning of the long, bitterly contested street car men's strike in Philadelphia. After five persons had been killed and a hundred injured in rioting in the City of Brotherly Love the famous state mounted constabulary was called upon to restore order. The strike extended over into March. Sporting men found much to interest them this month in the downfall of Battling Nelson, the lightweight pugilistic champion, who lost his title to Ad Wolgast in San Francisco. The fight took place on Washington's birthday.

MARCH.—Famous Men Pass Away.

In March the hand of death was laid on the supreme court bench, taking from among its members David J. Brewer, one of this country's most noted jurists and publicists. Two other men of national note whose careers came to an end this month were former Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York and Louis Klopsch, editor of the Christian Herald and promoter of international charity.

On March 17 the speed record of men's motion on the face of the earth was broken when Barney Oldfield urged his automobile over the course at Daytona Beach, Fla., at the rate of more than two miles a minute. He covered a mile in 27.33 seconds.

APRIL.—Mark Twain Gone, First City to City Flight.

On April 21, 1910, the world was bereaved by the death of Mark Twain. This "man of sorrows" who had brought light and laughter into millions of homes other than his own, who was humorist, philosopher, warrior against chams and wrongs, passed away broken by illness and bereavement. He had lived nearly seventy-five years, long enough to learn that his fame was international, that his name was engraved on the hearts of his own people and that they loved and esteemed him as "Gude, philosopher and friend." Mark Twain, whose real name was Samuel L. Clemens, died at his home in Redding, Conn. The same month saw the passing of Bjornstjerne Bjornson, the famous Norwegian novelist, patriot, poet and playwright. In April Governor Charles E. Hughes of New York was appointed to succeed Justice Brewer on the supreme court bench. A Socialist victory which aroused widespread interest was the election of Emil Seidel as mayor of Milwaukee on April 5.

Certainly of all interesting subjects of the year aviation, in view of its numerous triumphs, deserves a separate paragraph. Let us note here, therefore, that on April 27, 1910, Louis Paulhan of France made the first great city to city flight by flying from London to Manchester, 135 miles, in 252 minutes. The year was filled with feats of human flight. If memory serves, not a single record was left infact. The year's record is splashed with red, however, since some of the world's most famous aviators paid for their daring with their lives.

MAY.—King Edward Dead. Halley's Comet, Visits the Earth. Curtiss' Flight.

Ruler of the world's mightiest empire, lord of its greatest fleet, possessor of a scepter wielded by his ancestors during a thousand years, Edward VII, king of Great Britain and Ireland, bowed to a mighty monarch than he on May 6, 1910. He was sixty-nine years old and had succeeded his mother, Queen Victoria, in January, 1901. He left behind him the memory of an able, astute ruler, possessed of great social tact. His son reigns in his stead as George V. The funeral of King Edward, held in London, was marked by a gathering of sovereigns and princes such as the world had never seen before. Seven reigning monarchs followed the bier.

"Welcome to our atmosphere" was the greeting extended last May to a visitor from celestial regions which comes to see us once in every seventy-seven years. On May 18, 1910, at 10:17 p. m., New York time, the earth passed through the tail of Halley's comet without any of the damage that had been feared and predicted. Most of us looked for Halley's comet and saw it flared like a faint streak among the stars. Emulating Paulhan, Glenn H. Curtiss made America's first city to city aerial trip on May 23, flying from Albany to New York for a prize of $10,000. Among the deaths of the month was that of Dr. Robert Koch, the famous German physician.

JUNE.—Roosevelt Returns, Many Noted Folk Die.

On June 18, 1910, the "big noise" arrived. All other matters of interest had to stand aside when former president Theodore Roosevelt set foot again on American soil after an absence of a year, spent in shooting lions and elephants in Africa and chasing monarchs to their lairs in Europe. Beginning in New York on the day named, the welcome extended clear across the continent. That same month, on the 23rd, congress adjourned after a stormy session marked in March by the certification of the powers of the speaker. On June 13 Charles K. Hamilton flew in a biplane from New York to Philadelphia, turned his machine around and flew back. Deaths of the month: Sydney Porter (G. Henry), writer of short stories; Elizabeth Blackwell, pioneer woman physician; Goldwin Smith, Anglo-Canadian-American publicist; Sir George Newnes, London publisher; United States Senators Daniel of Virginia and McNary of Louisiana.

JULY.—The Big Prizefight. Death of Chief Justice Fuller.

For many months before July 4 the Jeffries-Johnson prizefight, scheduled to take place at Reno, Nev., on Independence day, had been a topic of animated discussion even among those little given to showing interest in the affairs of the ring. It was a surprise to many when the white man not only failed to defeat his colored opponent, but fell a hopelessly outclassed victim to Johnson's jabs and swings. The contest lasted fifteen rounds. "Race riots" followed in several cities. McWille Weston Fuller, chief justice of the United States since 1888, died at his home in his 84th year, on July 4. He was seventy-eight years old. Justice Fuller left behind a reputation for legal learning, sagacity, broad-mindedness and personal distinction. He was not the greatest of our chief justices, but his name will live in American annals as that of an able, upright judge.

AUGUST.—Mayor Gaynor Shot. Various Other Events.

On Aug. 2 the country was shocked by the report that an attempt had been

Notable Occurrences Which Will Have Permanent Places In the World's History

On the 19th of the same month two aviators, Weymann, an American, and Chavez, a Peruvian, attempted flights over the Alps. Chavez succeeded, but lost his life in a low fall at the close of his trip. William Holman-Hunt, English painter; Emanuel Fremlet, French sculptor, and Lloyd W. Bowers, solicitor general of the United States, were among the dead of the month. Millions of Roman Catholics the world over followed with interest the proceedings of the eucharistic congress held in Montreal. Maine went Democratic on Sept. 12, electing a Democratic governor for the first time in thirty years.

OCTOBER.—Portuguese Republic Born. Wellman's Attempt to Fly Across the Sea.

October's chronicle contains the story of the overthrow of the ancient Portuguese monarchy and the establishment of a republic in its stead. This uprising which drove King Manuel from his throne occurred on the night of Oct. 4. The revolution was attended by little disorder and bloodshed, although there were some fighting and loss of life in Lisbon and elsewhere. King Manuel and his relatives fled first to Gibraltar and then to England. The provisional government of the new republic chose as its first president Dr. Theophile Braga.

Long illness brought about, in October, the resignation of Justice William H. Moody from the supreme court bench. Among the dead of October were numbered former Governor and Senator David B. Hill of New York, Senator J. P. Dolliver of Iowa and Julia Ward Howe, whose "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and other writings made her famous. She was ninety-one years old. Walter Wellman made a courageous but futile attempt to fly from America to Europe in his dirigible balloon America. The airship came to grief after sailing about 760 miles over the ocean, the crew being rescued by the steamer Trent. The Philadelphia American league baseball team won the world's championship by defeating the Chicago Nationals.

NOVEMBER.—Democratic Landslide. Tolstoy Dead.

On Nov. 8 the general elections were held throughout the country. The result was a Democratic landslide, governors of that persuasion being elected in Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, New Jersey, Connecticut and other states. Among the governors elect are John A. Dix of New York, Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts, Woodrow Wilson (formerly president of Princeton university) of New Jersey and Judson Harmon (re-elected) of Ohio. The next house of representatives will be Democratic, and many senate seats formerly held by Republicans will be filled by Democrats. The month saw the tragic end of Count Leo Tolstoy, world famous philosopher and writer, who left his home in Russia to seek solitude and found death from exposure. He was a preacher of peace in all worldly relations. The governors' conference was held in Frankfort and Louisville, Ky., at the end of November, and President Taft took a trip to inspect the work being done on the Panama canal. It was announced that the canal would be finished in 1912. The end of the month was marked by Dr. Frederick A. Cook's confession that he was not sure, after all, that he reached the north pole. President Diaz's rule of Mexico was threatened by revolts, and sailors on some of the Brazilian men of war gained amelioration of their living conditions by open revolt against the government. Other serious risings of sailors took place at Rio de Janeiro in December.

DECEMBER.—Christian Scientists Lose Their Leader. Census Gives Us 101,100,000.

December's opening saw the death of the founder of a religion. Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, for many years the head of the Christian Science church, passed away at her home in Newton, Mass., on Dec. 3, in her ninetieth year. She left behind many thousands of followers who find in her teachings, as explained in her book, "Science and Health," a rule of life to guide them on the road of spiritual light and leading. Great Britain found itself again this month in the throes of a general election, caused by the dissolution of parliament which followed disagreement by the Liberals and Unionists on the questions of reform or abolition of the house of lords, home rule for Ireland, free trade or protection, etc.

On Dec. 12 Edward Douglass White, formerly associate justice, was appointed chief justice of the United States to succeed the late Chief Justice Fuller. This month the population of the United States, according to the census taken this year, was announced. It showed that the United States has 101,100,000 inhabitants. With the Philippines there are now 101,100,000 Americans. Since 1900 we have gained 15,145,621.

DEATH OF HOXSEY FIRE IN MANCHESTER

Church Was Burned, Causing a Loss of $30,000

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 2.—Deacon George Hoxsey, an octogenarian, who has served the Merrimack street Baptist church for more than half a century as deacon and clerk, stood like a patriarch of old before the congregation yesterday morning and averted a crisis when the building was found to be on fire.

The venerable pastor, Rev. Nathaniel L. Colby, who has been in the ministry more than 40 years, and pastor of this church for 32 years, was giving a blessing on the collection about to be taken up, when the congregation, numbering nearly 200, were startled by smoke, black and dense, pouring through the registers.

Some rose in their seats, but Deacon Hoxsey faced them, his voice calm and strong. "Just be quiet," he said. "There is no necessity of haste, but just go out orderly and expeditiously as the firemen have been sent for and they will want these aisles very soon."

His voice and action calmed the assembly, and all escaped in safety, although as those in the rear fled out the church was in flames and before they could be stopped a loss of $30,000 was entailed.

The church was one of the historic edifices of the city, erected in 1857 at an expense of $7000, and rebuilt and remodeled in 1895, equipped with a new organ and furnishings throughout. The fire caught from the hot-air furnace and ascended to the roof with startling rapidity. The junior, E. C. Cole, known as a very careful and safe man, started the fire Saturday night and kept them burning throughout the night in order to have the church warm for yesterday's services.

He freshened the fires yesterday morning and when he left the furnace room to attend the services above there was nothing to indicate the slightest danger. He is unable to account for the fire.

Spread Gloom Over Aviation Field at Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 2.—There were flying events at aviator field yesterday, but the memory of Arch Hoxsey's death hung like a pall over aviators and spectators. The fliers worked as cautiously as did the early pioneers in their aerial experiments that brought flight within the realm of accomplished science, as the wind was almost as treacherous as it was Saturday, when it caught Hoxsey and tossed him to death.

All the aviators ascended, but they flew apparently only because their contracts called for daily flights and because there were people in the grand stands who had paid money to see them fly. None of them remained in the air more than a few minutes and long before the program was completed the committee dismissed the spectators with the announcement that the meet, which was to close Tuesday, would end today.

Tuesday is the day set for the funeral of Hoxsey.

Walter Brookings, who coached Hoxsey in the art of flying, was pale and nervous yesterday when he brought his airplane on the field, and in the short flight he made, he never once attempted the thrilling spiral dives which he originated and which Hoxsey was emulating when he fell.

Parmalee, the only other surviving member of the Wright team of four that started west a few weeks ago, also kept close to the ground.

Hubert Latham was the only aviator to keep his machine in the air more than half an hour. Ready for a time refused to attempt a flight at all. It was only when the wind lifted a little that he consented to ascend. After rising he encountered gusts that threatened his control over his machine and he promptly descended.

"This is the last for me in winds like this. I am taking no chances," he said.

While Eugene Ely was making a flight, a guy wire parted and becoming entangled in his propeller broke a piece off from one of the blades. Ely pointed his machine downward, taking a sharp angle to get to earth as quickly as possible. A shout of apprehension rose from the spectators, but Ely landed safely with a lot that only jarred him. Hoxsey's body was removed to Pasadena yesterday, where it will lie in a mortuary chapel until Roy Knabenshue, manager of the Wright team, completes plans for the funeral.

All funeral expenses will be borne by the Wright brothers and a competent sum will be given to Mrs. Hoxsey. It was learned last night that every cent which Hoxsey made during his entire aviation work will be given to his mother. Mrs. Hoxsey, mother of the dead aviator, will also receive approximately $10,000. It is said, from the aviation committee as the winnings of her son during the meet. The altitude prize of $3000 was won by Hoxsey last Monday. His American endurance record of 3 hours and 15 minutes, made the day before his death, undoubtedly will stand, and this will add $3000 more to the purse. Hoxsey's winnings of daily altitude and endurance prizes will amount to $4000 additional.

Mrs. Hoxsey is a quiet little woman, 62 years old. She has been a widow 19 years, during which time she has lived with her son.

Hoxsey was a fatalist. He believed that when his time came to die he would die, no matter where he was or what he was doing. He talked of this so much to his mother that she came to believe the same as he. "This accounts much for his fearlessness and the resignation of his mother."

"Hoxsey's last efforts seemed to be to adjust his machine and to keep on flying," said Phil Parmalee, the speed aviator of the Wright camp, after he had viewed the aeroplane in which Hoxsey fell to death.

"The indications from the way the aeroplane fell are that Hoxsey used a mighty effort to right himself. If he had had 50 feet more between himself and the ground he might have succeeded. The machine struck almost on its horizon. That indicates that it was righting even while the aviator was whirling in a series of somersaults."

"Hoxsey worked with a cool head to the very last second of his life. He never lost his nerve for an instant. When he went up light was blowing. In the hour and 15 minutes he was aloft this increased to a gusty, deceptive calm. Hoxsey was unaware of this, and he glided down from an altitude of 7000 feet with his motor shut off and anticipating no danger."

FIRE IN BUREAU CAUSED THE ALARM FROM BOX 18

Fire broke out in a bureau in a house occupied by Alexander Espinoza at the corner of Chelmsford and Short streets Saturday night shortly after seven o'clock. An alarm from box 18 was sounded and the department was soon on the scene and extinguished the blaze. The damage will be slight.

POLICE OFFICER Was Thrown Through a Window

ST. JOHN, N. B., Jan. 2.—Throwing a police officer through a plate glass window was but one of the pranks of a crowd of New Year's celebrators who thronged through the streets of St. John singing and shouting to welcome the arrival of 1911. The officer who was the victim of the celebrators was Policeman Witterlin. He had drawn his revolver in an effort to quell the disturbances when suddenly he was seized from behind and hurled headlong at the window of a shoe store on King street.

The crowd held up two street cars in King and Charlotte streets, roughly handling the motorcars and conductors; broke in one of the cars, smashed shop windows and destroyed electric light fixtures. No arrests have yet been made, but the police are busy gathering evidence.

EIGHT DEATHS MARKED EVE OF NEW YEAR IN MANHATTAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The first day of the new year begins to take place on the hospital catenades and in the water of the police with the death of four. Directly and indirectly consequent upon the celebration of Saturday night, there were eight deaths in Manhattan and Brooklyn, and a long list of stabblings and assaults.

GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Spurr Observed Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Merrill Spurr quietly observed their golden wedding anniversary yesterday at their home, 370 Westford street and were congratulated by immediate friends.

Miss Laura G. Adams and Joseph M. Spurr were married January 1, 1861, Rev. J. L. Jenkins, then pastor of the First Congregational church, officiating. One daughter was born to them and she died in 1889.

Mr. Spurr was born in Otisfield, Me., in 1841, and came to Lowell in 1869 from Woburn, where he had been a resident but a short time. Mr. Spurr is seventh in descent from Robert Spurr, who left Gravesend, Eng., in 1631 and settled in Dorchester, Mass.

His grandfather, Joseph Spurr, went from Wrentham, Mass., and settled in Otisfield, Me., in 1779. His father, Samuel Spurr, was born in Otisfield, and his mother was a native of Dorchester, Mass.

In August, 1862, Mr. Spurr enlisted at Lynnfield, Mass., in Co. H, 33d Mass. regiment. He was the guide of his company at the battle of Wachusett Oct. 29, 1863, and was shot through the fleshy portion of his left arm. The bullet broke two of his ribs and was removed from the pit of his stomach. Mr. Spurr was reported dead at the time.

He was given the bullet by the surgeon and still retains it.

As the result of the wound Mr. Spurr was discharged and returned when able to Lowell. He has in his possession the rubber blanket carried by him during the Civil war. He also has a flute which he picked from the field at Gettysburg on the second day, when the 33d Mass. regiment reached there.

Mr. Spurr for some time after the Civil war was employed by the late J. W. B. Shaw in his store in Merrimack street. Later he began the manufacture of shirts. This he continued until he retired. He has continued in the shoe street here until 1909, when he retired.

Mrs. Spurr, who is not in good health, was born in Derry, N. H., July 4, 1842. Her father, Joseph R. Adams, was an overseer in the State mills in Manchester, N. H., and her mother's maiden name was Abigail Parrinell. The Adams family came to Lowell in 1857.

Deposits that money received at Christmas in The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank. It will go on interest Saturday, January 7th.

In a Wreck On the Moller Creek Railroad

Four of the Victims Were Passengers—Accident Was Caused By Collision Between Locomotive and Coal Cars

ASHLAND, Ky., Jan. 2.—Six persons were killed in a wreck on Moller Creek railroad a few miles above Paintsville, Ky., last night. Of the victims four were passengers and the others trainmen. The dead: WILLIAM AKERS, brakeman; JOHN WORLEY, conductor; L. G. PINSON, Van Ler, Ky.; F. UGATE, Van Ler, Ky.; LEMUEL MILLS, Van Ler, Ky.

A SMELTNER, Ironton, Ohio. The accident was caused by a collision between a locomotive and three coal cars of a mixed train which broke away while the accommodation was coming down a steep grade to connect with the Chesapeake & Ohio passenger train at Van Ler. On the return trip the mixed train collided with these cars. The dead men were riding upon the pilot of the locomotive.

gerald, democrat, would make a good run for the position of city treasurer.

Councilman Elliot President

At 11:25 Councilman John Brady of ward two, who was selected from the six senior members to call to order, raised the gavel and found 27 members present.

On motion of Councilman Achin a ballot was taken for president of the common council.

Councilman Allard placed in nomination the name of Herbert E. Elliott.

The vote was a strict party vote. Councilman Elliott receiving 15 votes, Councilman Chapman one and Councilman William J. Gargan ten.

Councilman Elliott voted for Councilman Chapman.

On motion of Councilman Gargan the election of President Elliott was made unanimous.

Councilman Davis and Royal were the committee who escorted Councilman Elliott to the chair.

The new president thanked the members in brief remarks.

Mr. Dowling Re-elected

On motion of Councilman Tracey a ballot was taken for clerk of the council and Frank M. Dowling received the entire 27 votes. He was immediately sworn in.

On motion of Councilman Chapman, the board adjourned until 2 o'clock.

Albert Bergeron Elected

The common council did not reconvene until after 3 o'clock as the republican members held a lengthy caucus.

The galleries and corridors were packed with spectators.

After disposing of a number of minor appointments, on motion of Councilman Achin, a ballot was taken for superintendent of streets and Albert Bergeron received the 17 republican votes against 10 for Robert E. Crowley voted by the democrats.

For City Solicitor

A motion was then made that a ballot be taken for city solicitor and William W. Duncan received 17 votes, all republicans. Eight democrats voted for J. Joseph O'Connor and two for J. Joseph Hennessy.

Water Board No Choice

The battle for the water board came next with the following result:

Whole number ..... 27
Necessary ..... 17
Robert J. Crowley ..... 13
James Henry ..... 7
Fisher H. Pearson ..... 4
James Carr ..... 1
James Farling ..... 1
Joseph Harvey ..... 1

And there was no choice. The vote was as follows: For Crowley, Councilman Achin, Brady, Chadwick, Connor, Corbett, Coughlin, Donohoe, Fulton, Gargan, J. J. Rogers, Royal Tracey, 13. For Henry, Councilman Bergeron, Cheney, Delaronde, Mahoney, Rannett, C. E. Rogers, Taylor, 7. For Pearson, Bowers, Chapman, Elliot, Whitte, 4. For Carr, Councilman Davis, for Farling, Councilman Allard; for Harvey, Councilman Gennet.

For City Messenger

A ballot was then taken for city messenger and Joseph E. Pattee received 17 votes; with Patrick Kane, 1; Owen Monahan, 3; John McCullough, 6; Michael Duffy, 1.

Dow Carries Council

A ballot for inspector of buildings resulted in the choice of James Dow, who received 17 votes against 10 for John W. O'Hara.

Crowley Carries Council

On the second ballot for a member of the water board Councilman Delaronde and Allard went over to Crowley, giving him a total of 16 votes, 14 being necessary for a choice. Henry had six on the second ballot; Pearson, four and Harvey 1.

ley, giving him a total of 16 votes. Candidates for officer and their representatives were buttonholing the members and all the stress possible was being brought to bear. One councilman said that candidates for office were as thick as hops.

It was reported that Thomas Fitz-

William F. Mahan Appointed

The appointment of Wm. F. Mahan as wire inspector for the unexpired term which began in 1910 was confirmed without opposition.

Orville W. Peabody was re-appointed pound keeper and the appointment was unanimously confirmed. The office was $5 per year.

The usual order for printed copies of the mayor's inaugural was adopted. The aldermen laid on the table the order naming the meeting nights.

On motion of Alderman Daly it was voted that when the board adjourns it adjourn to January 10.

Alderman Gallagher at this point asked to be excused from further participation in the meeting.

On motion of Alderman Daly the board adjourned.

Members of City Government Take Oath of Office---Wm. F. Mahan Chosen Wire Inspector

The city council of Lowell for the year 1911 was formally inducted into office at city hall this morning in the presence of a large and representative gathering of men and women. The exercises opened at 9:40, somewhat late, owing to unavoidable circumstances.

The inauguration was one of the quietest in years, and while the crowd was not as large as a few years ago, there were more representative people in attendance. The inclement weather undoubtedly kept away many of the older generation and only two of the ex-mayors, James B. Casey and Frederick W. Farnham, were in attendance.

One feature somewhat marred the general happy and congratulatory spirit of the occasion, and that was the misfortune that has visited Alderman James J. Gallagher, whose brother, Daniel Gallagher, died Saturday night. Alderman Gallagher felt it his duty to be present at the inauguration exercises, though he performed his duty with heavy heart and excused himself after the opening joint convention.

The multitude of candidates for office was active and busy and button-holed the members who arrived early. The new members were all attired in new garments and looked resplendent. Alderman Rountree and Councilman Crowley of ward 7 were the Beau Brummels of the two branches.

Marched to Aldermen's Chamber

The members formed in the mayor's reception room and marched in two to the aldermen's chamber, on the threshold of which City Messenger Pattee made his time-honored announcement, "Ladies and Gentlemen: It gives me great pleasure to introduce His Honor the mayor and the city council of 1911."

The line was led by City Messenger Pattee, escorted Mayor Meehan, followed by Judge Samuel P. Hadley and Rev. John J. McHugh, of St. Patrick's church, ex-Mayors Casey and Farnham and the members of the new city council who took seats in a semi-circle around the city clerk's desk.

When all had seated Mayor Meehan introduced Fr. McHugh, to deliver the opening prayer, and during the prayer the spectators either knelt or remained standing. The prayer was an eloquent invocation and concluded with the recitation of the Lord's prayer by all present.

Oath of Office

City Clerk Darnan then announced that His Honor Samuel P. Hadley would administer the oath of office to the mayor. The latter in turn swore in the members of the city council.

Delivered the Inaugural

With these formalities over Mayor Meehan then delivered his inaugural address. The inaugural was of moderate length and will be found in another column.

The reading of the inaugural was received with applause.

At the conclusion of the reading of the inaugural the joint convention dissolved and the members of the common council retired to their chamber.

Board of Aldermen

At 10:25 the board of aldermen was called to order and on motion of Alderman Daly a ballot was taken for chairman of the board.

James J. Gallagher was the unanimous choice for chairman and took his seat forthwith. Mr. Gallagher voted for Alderman Daly, but the latter moved to make the election unanimous.

On motion of Alderman Daly the rules of 1910 were adopted.

On motion of Alderman Daly a recess of 20 minutes was taken during which the hall was cleared.

Mayor Holds Reception

During the half hour following the opening exercises Mayor Meehan held an informal reception in the mayor's office.

Aldermen Resumed Session

Mayor Meehan called the board of aldermen to order at 11 o'clock and the mayor read a large list of minor appointments including constables, weighers of coal, measurers of wood and bark fence viewers, etc.

H. Allard, Jr., of ward one; William Crowley of ward seven, and John J. Brady of ward two, one each. Wards eight and nine didn't send any bouquets.

The desks were strewn with the cards of candidates and it was said that they were more numerous than in previous years.

Clerk Dowling was the first to arrive in the council chamber and it was then 10:15. Then the members kept straggling in and a sort of social session was in order. There were some ex-councilmen present and they had words of cheer and more or less advice to offer.

At 11:45 the republican members went into caucus in the councilman's committee room. It was the second time they caucused during the forenoon.

The democrats caucused after the republican caucus and there was considerable speculation as to whether or not the council would go into joint convention and it was said that the caucuses had to do with that question.

The question of who would be the choice for president was an important one and Herbert E. Elliott of ward eight was in the lead. This is his second year in the council.

Candidates for officer and their representatives were buttonholing the members and all the stress possible was being brought to bear. One councilman said that candidates for office were as thick as hops.

It was reported that Thomas Fitz-

The appointment of Wm. F. Mahan as wire inspector for the unexpired term which began in 1910 was confirmed without opposition.

On motion of Alderman Daly it was voted that when the board adjourns it adjourn to January 10.

Alderman Gallagher at this point asked to be excused from further participation in the meeting.

On motion of Alderman Daly the board adjourned.

The Common Council

There were flowers galore in the common council and their fragrance was not amiss. John J. Coughlin of ward four was given three bouquets; Thomas Corbett of ward five had two; C. A. Delaronde of ward six had one; Thomas Chadwick of ward seven had 2; and Adelard Derard of ward three; Thomas Donohoe of ward four; George

TWO ACCIDENTS REV. FR. HARKINS

Treated at Emergency Hospital To Take Residence In Stevens Street

John Ozle suffered a severe accident this morning while at work at the Walter L. Parker company. While sawing a piece of wood on a circular saw, Ozle's left thumb came in contact with the tool and was badly lacerated. The injured man was removed to the Emergency hospital, and his thumb was amputated at the first joint. His home is in Centralville.

Scalp Wound

Willie Lynch of 160 South street is suffering from a slight scalp wound which he sustained this morning by falling against the stove at his home. He was treated at the Emergency hospital.

Rev. James MacGuinness, the new curate assigned to St. Peter's church, was the celebrant at high mass yesterday at that church. Fr. MacGuinness is the possessor of a rich baritone voice and he intoned the different passages of the mass finely. Rev. Daniel J. Hefernan preached the sermon. At all the masses it was announced that after Jan. 10th Rev. John J. Harkins, pastor of the new St. Margaret's parish, will take up permanent residence in the new parish house, 324 Stevens street, at which place the parishioners are to make all necessary arrangements pertaining to church work.

Officers Chosen

BY THE MEMBERS OF CERCLE ST. LOUIS

The members of Cercle St. Louis held a well attended meeting yesterday afternoon at their hall in St. Louis' convent, the main feature of which was the election of officers for the ensuing year, with the following result: President, Hector Dupuis; vice president, Mr. Alphonse Landry; secretary, Rudolph Boudreau; assistant secretary, Ernest Trudeau; treasurer, J. A. N. Cloutier; master of ceremonies, Leo Beaulieu; chaplain, Rev. Fr. R. A. Fortier.

Brief remarks were made by all the officers elect and refreshments were served. The installation of these officers will take place next Thursday at the American hotel, where the members of the cercle will sit at a banquet.

TOP OF COACH

WAS BLOWN OFF BY A BLIZZARD

TOPEKA, Kas., Jan. 2.—The blizzard sweeping over Kansas gave passengers on a Rock Island railroad train due here early this morning an unusual experience. While running at full speed the top of a passenger coach was blown off giving the passengers a chill, but no one was injured. The damaged coach was abandoned and the train reached Topeka two hours late.

ROUGH WEATHER PREVAILS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 2.—Texas experienced rough weather today all through the Pan Handle. The lowest temperature in Oklahoma was two below at Oklahoma City. In Kansas the range was from two below at Wichita to 8 below at Dodge City.

Blizzards swept Nebraska and Colorado. The lowest temperature in Nebraska—16 below zero—was recorded in North Platte. In Iowa the range was from two to eight below. The lowest temperature in Missouri was 1 below zero in St. Joseph.

PROBABLY LOST

BERLIN, Jan. 2.—The spherical balloon Hildebrandt, which ascended at Schmargendorf, a short distance from this city, last Thursday, with four passengers who intended making a 45 hour trip, has not yet been reported. The balloon when last seen was headed in the direction of the Baltic and it is the belief in aviation circles here that the airmen probably came to grief in that sea.

BRILLIANT SCENE

At New Year's Reception at the White House Today

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Notwithstanding the fact that the sky was overcast and a heavy mist filled the air, the usual phalanx of American citizens, possibly somewhat diminished, stood in front of the White House today to make the customary New Year's call upon the president of the United States.

The doors were opened at 11 o'clock when the president began the ordeal of the day. Mrs. Taft and the cabinet ladies received in the Blue room.

The White House was made attractive as usual with a wealth of floral decorations. The Marine band, in full dress uniform, was drawn up in two sections in the main corridor and throughout the receiving hours the music was continuous. The foreign ambassadors and ministers and the members of their families and suites were as usual given precedence.

A full half-hour was given over to the reception of the diplomats and the scene as they passed through the Red and Blue rooms to the east room was a brilliant one.

Following the diplomatic corps came the supreme court justice, the line headed by the new chief justice, Mr. White. Senators and representatives followed the judiciary. The congressional contingent was not a large one, however, for congress will not re-assemble until Thursday and most of the national legislators are out of the city. Speaker Cannon was a center of interest as usual. Champ Clark, who is slated to succeed Mr. Cannon, was late in reaching the White House. He received a most cordial greeting from the president.

As for many years past General Nelson Miles, retired, headed the long line of army officers who called in full dress uniform. With him walked Gen. Wood, the chief of staff of the army.

Admiral George Dewey was at the head of the naval contingent. Capt. Robert Peary was in line with his fellow navy officers. The president chatted with him a moment or two as they shook hands.

Following the army, the navy and the marine corps delegations, the president received various departmental officials, then the doors were thrown open for the reception of the general public. Many men and women had been waiting in the rain for two or three hours. The features of the reception were hurried, as much as possible in order that the public might be admitted well ahead of the time set.

TO INCREASE STATE'S INCOME

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—Important recommendations looking to the increase of the state's income by many millions of dollars annually will be made to the legislature by the joint committee appointed two years ago to revise the corporation and revenue laws of the commonwealth. The recommendations cover many branches of industry, and if adopted by the legislature, which convenes tomorrow and signed by the governor, will become operative at once.

It is proposed to levy a one mill tax on the $2,000,000,000 of capital stock of manufacturing corporations, which has heretofore been exempt from state taxation. The committee also recommends a tax of 25 per cent. of the value of all anthracite coal at the mouth of a mine or a flat rate of five cents on each ton of anthracite mined.

A direct inheritance tax of one per cent. and a graduate inheritance tax are recommended.

IN NORTHAMPTON

ASSESSED VALUE OF CITY SHOWS INCREASE OF $540,000

NORTHAMPTON, Jan. 2.—Calvin Coolidge was inaugurated as mayor for a second term today. Mayor Coolidge in his inaugural said that the total assessed value of the city showed an increase during the past year of $540,000. The mayor urged that special efforts be made to conserve the resources of the city. Considering that the officers of many important boards and departments serve without pay, he suggested that the salaries of the members of the board of overseers of the poor be discontinued as fast as their terms expired. On the other hand he urged that the police department be given several additional patrolmen and that the fire department be increased by a number of permanent men. He declared that greater pains should be taken in the care and prevention of contagious diseases.

CHILD'S CONDITION SERIOUS

Little Bertha Coutu who was badly burned about the body Saturday afternoon while playing near the stove at her home, 228 Woburn street, is still in the same condition at the Lowell hospital, and the physicians have little hope for her recovery. The mother, Mrs. Athanasia J. Coutu, who was burned about the hands and arms has improved a little, but is still confined to the hospital.

Mr. Adelard Lequin, president of Cercle St. Louis is visiting relatives in Holyoke, Mass.

ALBERT FAMILY

Held a New Year Celebration Yesterday

The 15 children of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Albert all gathered at the old homestead yesterday morning for the annual Jour de l'An reunion. A merry party from Lowell drove out to the old folk's home in Pelham, N. H., arriving there at midnight and finding a delicious spread of roast sucking pig, turkey and "civet de lievre." This last item on the menu was the result of Undertaker Joseph Albert's late hunting exploits.

Present at the feast were Mrs. Ernest Ouellette, Mrs. Pierre Beaulieu, Mrs. Eugene St. Hilaire, Joseph Firmin, Jodore, Paul, Josephine, Antoinette and Rosanna Albert, all of this city; Charles Albert, and Mrs. Joseph Brouillette of Dover, N. H.; Mrs. Chas. Grenier of Magog, Que., and Mrs. Marie Louise Bascam of Newmarket, N. H.

NARROW ESCAPE

Child Ran Into Fender of Car

Helen Brassill, aged ten years, and residing at 58 Walnut street, had a narrow escape from being seriously hurt in Middlesex street shortly before 12:30 o'clock this afternoon as a result of running against the member of an outward bound Middlesex street electric car.

The car left Merrimack square at 12:15 with Motorman Thomas M. Donohue on the platform. As the car approached South street the motorman applied the brakes preparatory to making a stop on the other side of the crossing.

When the car had almost come to a standstill the little Brassill girl rushed through South street and across Middlesex street and struck the side of the front fender of the car. She was knocked down by the force of the contact, but picked herself up and said she was not hurt.

WORLD'S RECORD

Was Made by Aviator Estophey

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 2.—With hundreds cheering his wonderful spurt around twelve laps which remained to complete his task of running a thousand miles in as many consecutive hours, Eugene Estophey yesterday established a new endurance world's record. He started at 10 o'clock in the morning of Nov. 20. He actually ran a mile each hour since the start, getting meals and sleep between miles. Estophey's reward consists of a $1,000 purse and his expenses.

P. J. HENNESSEY

Well Known Lawrence Man Dead

After an illness of over three months, Patrick J. Hennessey, superintendent of public property, of Lawrence, and one of the best known city officials, died Saturday morning at his late home, 53 Buswell street, in that city.

Mr. Hennessey's death was not unexpected, as his illness had extended over a long period and for some time it had been known that he was in a serious condition. The best of medical aid was sought during his illness and although every effort was made to restore him to good health, results show that the fight was an unequal one. He bore his illness with patience and fortitude. In sickness his pleasant ways did not forsake him and he always bore his sufferings bravely, trying to make it as easy as possible for those whose duty it was to care for him.

Deceased was connected with many fraternal and social organizations throughout the city and his pleasant company was always sought. One of the greatest characteristics of Mr. Hennessey was his love of outdoor sport, especially baseball in which the deceased showed himself to be a player of more than ordinary ability and during his career on the diamond was connected with many of the strongest semi-professional teams in this city and state. He always was a devotee of the great national game, and even when compelled to stop playing the game his interest waxed the same. He served as a member of the board of directors of the Lawrence Athletic association previous to the sale of the baseball club. He was also a boxer of some note in his younger days.

Mr. Hennessey was born in Lawrence and lived there all his life. He received his early education in the public schools of the city leaving to accept a position in one of the mills. He remained in the mill a short time and started to learn carpentering with Contractor James Flanagan. He learned his trade and worked at it until he was elected superintendent of the public property in 1904 which office he has held ever since.

MAYOR LATHROP

ADVISES MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP OF LIGHTING SYSTEMS

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 2.—For the first time in Springfield's history a mayor was inaugurated for a two-year term when Mayor Edward Lathrop took the oath of office in Memorial hall today.

The mayor's inaugural message was something of a departure from the usual majority inaugurals of this city, inasmuch as Mr. Lathrop strongly advocated the municipal ownership of the gas and electric lighting systems, at present owned by two separate corporations. He also advocated the auditing of all city departments.

Mayor Lathrop called attention to the recent merger of the two traction systems of the city, the Springfield street railway and the Springfield & Eastern street railway companies, which he declared would cause the city financial loss.

He pointed out that the treasurer's report showed that the city was with $478,000 of the debt limit and said that although the tax rate is among the lowest of the 33 cities of the commonwealth, it would be necessary to exercise great care in the management of city affairs.

NEW YEAR'S HONORS

Absence of Any New Peerages Caused Great Surprise

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Much surprise will be occasioned by the absence from the New Year honors issued last night of any new peerages. The political prophets had predicted an unusually large list of peerages, the names of the Rt. Hon. Richard B. Haldane, secretary for war and others having been mentioned. Some conservative papers have talked of the appointment of as many as 20 or 30 new peers.

The omission is susceptible of two possible explanations. Either the king would not sanction or Premier Asquith was reluctant to recommend the creation of peers while the difficult question relating to the house of lords remained unsettled. Doubtless many unionists will jump at the conclusion that the prime minister failed to obtain the required guarantees from the king, but it is considered more reasonable to suppose that the government recognized the futility of creating new peers while the question of drastic reform of the upper chamber, with the possible abolition of the hereditary basis, was in the air.

The premier's list of honors comprises six privy councillors, the most notable of whom are Alexander William Murray, master of Elibank, the chief liberal whip, and William Abraham, a member of the house of commons for the Rhonda division of Glamorganshire, who is the son of a working collier and himself closely identified with mining interests, nine baronets, among the best known of whom is Charles Wright Macara, president of the cotton federation and 25 knights. The most likely to strike public attention among the new knights are Joseph Lyons, a well known caterer, for services in supporting the territorial movement, and Henry J. Wynn, the orchestral conductor. Sydney Cowlin, keeper of prints and drawings in the British museum was also knighted.

Otherwise the list is not of striking interest. The rewards go to political workers, officials of various kinds and many doctors and others connected with philanthropic work. The long list of promotions in the order of St. Michael and St. George include the names of Lord Robson and A. B. Aylesworth, the Canadian minister of justice in connection with the fisheries arbitration and George F. Gibbons, chairman of the Canadian section of the waterways commission, in connection with the treaty on the boundary waters of Canada and the United States.

Among the honors conferred in connection with the establishment of the union of South Africa, Dr. Leander Starr Jameson, member of the federal parliament at Cape Town, who led the famous raid on the Transvaal in 1895, becomes a baronet.

TO BECOME NUNS

Lowell Young Women to Take Vows

Miss Alexandrine Hamelin of West Sixth street and Miss Mabel Hall of Austin street will leave on Wednesday morning for the Academy of Nazareth, Lagrange, Ill., to become nuns in the Order of the Sisters of St. Joseph, who have charge of the school. The two young ladies will be accompanied by Rev. Sister St. Francis D'Assise, formerly Miss Marie Lorette of this city, and Rev. Sister Anastasia, formerly Miss Marjorie Lavelle, also of this city. The former has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lorette of Salem street, and the latter of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lavelle of Alken street.

On the day after their arrival at the convent, on Jan. 6, three other young Lowell girls who entered the order a few months ago, will receive the holy habit at an imposing ceremony. These are Miss Rosanna Lorette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lorette of Salem street, Miss Marie Louise Bergeron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hercules Bergeron of Merrimack street, and Miss Eva Bolsvert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bolsvert of Phoebe avenue.

NORTH CHELMSFORD

There was a large attendance at the meeting of Court Wannalancit, No. 171, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, held in the town hall at North Chelmsford yesterday afternoon.

The feature of the meeting was the election of officers which resulted as follows:

Chief ranger, Henry O. Miner; vice chief ranger, James P. Daley; recording secretary, George E. Stanley; financial secretary, Perle J. Constanline; treasurer, John F. McManomin; senior conductor, Alphonse Margant; junior conductor, George F. Jones; outside sentinel, Michael McPhillips; outside sentinel, Philip A. Hogan. Delegates to the annual convention, James B. McQuaid and Patrick S. Ward; alternates, John F. McManomin and Owen F. McNally; trustees, Mrs. P. S. Ward, Miss Rosella Monahan and Mrs. Michael J. Walsh; court physician, Dr. James J. Hoban.

A committee of six, consisting of Patrick S. Ward, Henry O. Miner, Jas. P. Daley, Mrs. Fred Gaudette, Mrs. P. S. Ward and Owen F. McNally, was appointed to have full charge of the public installation of officers, which will take place at some future date.

The new officers will be installed by the Merrimack degree staff of Haverhill. Court Lowell, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, of Lowell, was represented at the meeting by the chief ranger, George Enright, and recording secretary, Frank Foye.

SHORTAGE OF $60,000

Veteran Bank Treasurer Was Placed Under Arrest

WESTFIELD, Jan. 2.—At a meeting of the trustees of the Westfield Savings bank, whose veteran treasurer, Velinus W. Crowson, was arrested Saturday night following the discovery of a shortage of nearly $60,000 in the bank's funds held at the banking rooms last night, Daniel F. Doherty, a vice-president and member of the board of trustees of the institution was selected to fill the office of treasurer until such time as a permanent treasurer is selected. Mr. Doherty is a prominent local manufacturer and political leader, and has been associated with the bank for a long time.

Preparations were also made by the trustees for meeting any emergency which might arise as a result of the announcement of the shortage and subsequent events. Officers of assistance have been received from other banking institutions and although no great run is expected depositors who desire to withdraw their accounts today when the bank opens for business will find the bank coffers filled and ready to meet their demands. Yesterday the ministers in the churches of the towns co-operated with the bank officials in their efforts to prevent a run to the extent of urging their parishioners to consider carefully before withdrawing their accounts. Particularly did the Rev. Francis Schneider, pastor of the Polish church, urge upon his congregation not to be hasty in action.

At the conference last evening the trustees discussed the situation at the bank at considerable length but declined to make any statement other than to announce the selection of Mr. Doherty as temporary treasurer and to again declare the stability of the bank.

THE NEW CHARTER

Was Discussed at a Meeting in Mathew Hall Yesterday

A large audience gathered in Mathew hall yesterday afternoon to hear discussions on the charter revision. Charles P. Murray, a prominent labor man in Lynn and City Solicitor G. M. Nichols of Haverhill were the speakers. They both told the story of their new city charters, and they answered all questions put up to them.

A little after 3 o'clock Mr. William H. Wilson called to order and made a brief introductory speech, in which he characterized the present Lowell charter as a ghost of the past and said that the draft of the proposed new charter would be offered to the press the latter part of the week so that the people could study its provisions and become acquainted with its details. Charles P. Murray of Lynn was introduced as the first speaker. He opened his speech by telling who he was and said he had for many years been identified with the labor movement in Lynn. He is an officer in a labor organization and president of the Wage Earner's club in Lynn, in which 7600 men are enrolled.

Mr. Nichols was one of those prejudiced against the word commission when the charter revision movement started in Lynn. After studying the elective commission, he found that there was no comparison to be made between the appointive and elective forms of commission, the latter being something he could entirely approve. Mr. Murray spoke at length on the subject and was followed by City Solicitor Nichols of Haverhill who outlined with great clearness the features of the new Haverhill charter. He does not agree with the Lowell committee in making the commission of five and the school board of five entirely separate.

Mr. Nichols spoke at great length on the proposed charter and explained all the good the Haverhill charter has done. He summed up his arguments and then threw the meeting open for questioning. There was a chorus of queries by Lawrence Cummings, Harry C. Doherty, Richard Sykes and John S. Stratton.

FATALLY BURNED

Baby Was Playing With Matches in His Home

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—An infant, John D. Sullivan, aged 19 months, of 56 Tremont street, Charlestown, lost his life, and Driver Bartholomew Dowd of engine 28 was injured in the first fires of the new year in Boston.

Three different alarms were sounded yesterday morning, the first at three o'clock for a blaze in the building 35 Hartford street, occupied by Huoy Bros., Inc., and it was while he was on his way to that that Dowd was thrown from his seat. He was not seriously hurt.

Andrew J. Keefe, a lodger in the house occupied by John E. Howard, 6 Maple place, South End, was overcome by smoke during a fire in that house and removed to the City Hospital. Ladder men Lucas and Kellher of ladder 17 rescued Keefe, who lay unconscious on his bed, which was afire. While he inhaled much smoke, he will recover, owing to the first aid work of the firemen.

The Sullivan child was playing with matches in his home and so severely burned that he died during the afternoon in the Relief station in Haymarket square.

The second fire, in point of time, was discovered at 5:30 yesterday morning in the building 62-64 Sudbury street, and an alarm was given from box 21. The fire brigade of the American house assisted the firemen and the blaze was extinguished with a loss of about $3000.

LIEUT. RACICOT WAS THE GUEST OF HIS MOTHER LAST WEEK

Lieut. Arthur A. Racicot, U. S. N., who has been stationed with the receiving ship Hancock at the New York barracks, was during the past week the guest of his mother, Mrs. A. A. Racicot of Moody street. The other sons of Mrs. Racicot were also at home for the holidays. Phileas, who is a senior at the Massachusetts Agricultural college at Amherst, and Henry, of the Boston Nautical school.

THE FISHERIES LAWS

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Jan. 2.—Premier Sir Edward Morris left here last night for Washington, where he is to confer with Secretary of State Knox, James Bryce, the British ambassador and Attorney-General Aylesworth of Canada regarding certain modifications of the new Newfoundland-Canadian fisheries laws, to which American fishermen have objected. This method of settling the questions at issue has been proposed in order to avoid the necessity of convening a special tribunal to decide the matter as provided by the recent Hague conference.

Just before midnight, not wishing the new year to begin without kissing the children, she was making her way to their rooms when she stumbled on the staircase and fell, injuring her left arm. The klog rushed to the assistance of the queen, who assured him that it was nothing serious, but added, "I am sorry that new year's begins badly." To this the king retorted, "Just the contrary, the old year finishes badly with your fall; the new year begins well because you are not hurt." A physician was called in and placed the arm in splints.

QUEEN INJURED GOING TO KISS CHILDREN AT NEW YEAR

ROME, Jan. 2.—During the reception of the senators and deputies by King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena at the Quirinal yesterday it was noticed that the queen appeared to be suffering considerable pain. Her majesty explained that she had had an accident.

TWO POISONED Girl and Her Fiance Victims of Cyanide

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 2.—That Miss Grace Blosser and her fiance, Charles E. Twigg, died of cyanide poisoning was established yesterday by chemical analysis of the stomachs of the dead girl and man. Further than this little or no light has been thrown upon the mystery of the deaths of the two, whose bodies were found by the mother of the girl scattered upon the sofa in the parlor of the Blosser home. The theory of a double suicide is declared impossible by the family and friends of Miss Blosser and also by those who knew and last saw alive the man who was to have last evening made her his wife. The authorities are working upon the theory that murder may have been committed and are running down every clue pointing in that direction.

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pillette, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 2, 1911. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

To our new city government and to all the friends of civic betterment we wish a happy and prosperous New Year.

MAKE THE RESOLUTIONS ANYHOW

Let the new year bring an advance to higher and better things. It is well to form good resolutions and to endeavor to keep them. If they are abandoned or forgotten after a while, that will show a lack of will power or else a lapse back to the old habits we had resolved to conquer. In any case it is better to make the attempt than not to make any effort to rise to higher standards of action and morals, higher ideals, higher accomplishments.

POPULARITY OF THE ICE PARK

The crowd on Shedd park yesterday afternoon, numbering perhaps 20,000 people, gave an indication of the vast popularity of a skating park and the benefit to the public of a first class park of this description. The skating was far from good, but such as it was, the multitude enjoyed it immensely.

Sometimes when the skating is good the park board should arrange a reception for Mr. Shedd at the park. That the people would give him a rousing reception is certain from the fact that a man mistaken for Mr. Shedd, a week ago Sunday, was the cynosure of all eyes and even cheered by the youngsters until he declared that he was not Mr. Shedd. The popularity of the park thus far under unfavorable conditions has demonstrated to the park board that an ice park in the winter is the most popular and beneficial feature, at least for the young people, yet attempted. Nor is this to be wondered at, inasmuch as young people support several roller skating rinks throughout the year. They are delighted to get for nothing what they have been paying for and this they get at Shedd park when the weather conditions are favorable.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK AHEAD

The outlook for Lowell as a city for the coming year is very encouraging in nearly every aspect. Our industries are thriving, new industries are starting up, while old ones are expanding. For building operations the year just closed has outstripped the preceding years and the new year gives promise of great activity in this line. In all the big factories there is a transition from steam to electric power, each factory planning to produce its own electricity. The big water wheels that formerly drove wheels, turning big shafts, will hereafter drive wheels that will produce electricity. In this change there will be a saving in the production of power, together with the elimination of much of the disagreeable work incident to the application of steam power. This is but one step onward. There are a great many others in progress in the direction of improved machinery, finer goods and as a result more successful business.

During the coming year, we expect to see a new charter adopted, a new public hall and a contagious hospital constructed. The great Y. M. C. A. building will be built on the Huntington hall lot, while the other buildings of a miscellaneous character, including churches, business blocks and tenement property will undoubtedly be very numerous. We have elected what should prove a very progressive city government, one that much is expected of and in which we hope the people will not be disappointed.

What is the duty of the hour? It is to drop all pessimism, to go ahead with the problems of providing first class government at the lowest possible cost and the results are sure to be satisfactory. Mayor Meehan during the year 1911 will have a heavy responsibility. He will be imparted by office seekers of all kinds but they should realize that the mayor's power to find places for the needy is very limited and that in a vast majority of the cases he is powerless to meet the demands of the place hunters. To the young men who have made up their minds that the city owes them a living through politics, we would say—do not wait for a city job. You may be gray haired before you get it, or you may not get it at all. Perhaps there is no more useless or mischievous class in the city than that composed of disgruntled candidates for office who cannot get what they want. There are scores of them who do little or nothing else than promoting as best they can their chances of landing a political office in the future. If they would subside or go to work when turned down, there would be little cause for complaint. But where they persist in remaining idle unless elected to office, the case becomes quite serious. It indicates what the people have to contend with in municipal elections.

But the men elected to office must not allow themselves to be disturbed by this element, although it pursues the men who are in office like an avenging Nemesis. In spite of this and other difficulties the future prospect for our city is very hopeful and upon the shoulders of the men who today took the oath of office, rests the responsibility of making this a red letter year in the history of our city, for business prosperity, for the peace, happiness and general well being of every class in our cosmopolitan community.

FOR A NON-PARTISAN TARIFF COMMISSION

The Boston chamber of commerce is arranging for a big delegation of business men from New England to attend the annual convention of the National Tariff Association to be held at the New Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C., January 11-12. The association favors the elimination of the tariff question from politics by having it placed in the hands of a non-partisan commission. Such a disposal of this subject would be of vast benefit to the country, provided the right kind of commission were secured. The New England banquet on the evening of January 11 will have speakers of national repute, including senators and representatives. The standpoint republicans favor the Taft tariff commission which is strictly partisan. It is not the kind of commission that would take the tariff out of politics. Rather would it keep the tariff in politics and use it to promote republican ascendancy in the government.

SEEN AND HEARD

HOME BUILDING
Home is not a thing of timber, brick and mortar, lath and stone. Built by plan with saw and hammer for man's dwelling place alone.

Home of finer stuff is builded—Human hearts and love poured free; But thoughts and deeds of kindness, I for thee and thee for me.

Home is where the heart is, be it Palace grand or simple cot; All the wealth of all the nations Without love may build it not.

—New England Homestead.

THE BLUFFERS
"How much do you want for your first Street lot?"
Said a real-estate man to me.
I looked as if I were lost in thought.
And then I replied: "Let's see."
Black's sold last year at fifty the foot;
So, without any algebra, that should put My figures at sixty now, I guess.
Or a trifle more, or a trifle less.
I was anxious to sell at fifty straight
Or I might have dropped down to forty-eight.
Oh, yes, I'm a bit of a bluff, it's true;
What sort of a bluff are you?"

"And what do you know about railroad rates?"
The man with a bald brow said.
"For you have traveled through all the states
And have heard a good deal and read."
"The railroad lines," I wisely replied.
"Are the lines with which our trade is tied."
And the wretches who take these rates
Bates set
New knots in the bonds under which we fret."

But now, I remember, I once rode free
And forgot that the road rebated me.
Oh, yes, I'm a bit of a bluff, it's true;
How much of a bluff are you?"
"So you went to hear Siegfried and found it fine?"
Said a classical friend one day.
"I'm sure your impressions accord with mine."
But tell me in your own terse way,
And "Oh, the tone-color beats belief."
And "dynamics," and "oh, motif!"
And "chiar-oscuro," how finely abstruse!"

For all that I understand in the play
Was that dippy, old dragon of papier-mache.
Oh, yes, I'm a bit of a bluff, it's true;
What sort of a bluff are you?"
"Should the senior senator be returned?"
Said a newspaper man to me.
"He's as rotten a rascal as ever burned."
I cried, "May I quote?" asked he.
"Oh, no," I replied; "if you're going to quote,
Just remark that his friends regret to note
That the exigencies of the party case indicate that he shouldn't re-enter the race."
For the senator sometime may possibly be Interviewed by a newspaperman about me!
Oh, none of these cases may quite fit you,
But what sort of a bluff are you?"
—Edmund Vance Cooke.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

The next speaker's full name is James Beauchamp Clark. When he went out into the world he discovered that Clark was the sixth most common name in America, and that James was nearly as prevalent as John or the meesies. James B. Clark was far from unusual. In the young man's mind was a man of that name who used to get his letters and throw them away. This was very annoying. So says Harper's Weekly, the other statesman dropped James, and became Beauchamp Clark. Beauchamp is a well known name out west. They pronounce it Beecham, like that of the Englishman who makes pills. Now, one of the incoming speaker's hobbies is accurate expression, and it irritated him to be called Beauchamp, when he should have been called Boshum, with the accent on the shom. Pains-taking investigation finally convinced him that only a Frenchman could say it properly, anyway, so he made up his mind to drop one of the syllables, and after due consideration he picked Beau as the one to go. Since then he has been plain Champ Clark, and is so designated almost invariably. We hear of Representative Underwood, Congressman Payne, and others, but never of Representative or Congressman Clark. It is always Champ Clark, as if hyphenated, with accent on the Clark.

The latest anniversary is a "radium wedding." At any rate, that term has been applied to the 75th wedding anniversary celebrated this year by a couple in Paris. They were married on Nov. 22, 1836, and the man and his wife are 55 and 52 years old, respectively.

D'Annunzio has really written a "mystery play," from the legends of Saint Sebastian, and Debussy is writing a prelude, symphonic interludes, "music of the scene," and incidental choruses and dances for the four acts in which the piece runs. Ida Rubinstein, a Russian mime of queer pale and painted lips and a queerer temperament, will play the saint, and the "mystery" is announced for performance next June in Paris.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

"Boys and Girls" is one of those new musical offerings that has won its way to much favor for its daintiness, brightness and beauty.

snappy dialogue and gorgeous surroundings. It tells a pretty story of college life, presenting many complications and humorous situations, all embellished with a host of catchy musical numbers. It has an exceptionally strong cast, including Miss Hazel Dunham, Miss Ollie Kirkman, Miss Alta Wilton, Mr. Bert La Mont, Mr. Jonathan Keefe, Sidney Craven and George F. Allen, with a sensational dancing and singing chorus of pretty girls, making up one of the swiftest and best singing organizations of the season. "Boys and Girls" will be given one performance on Tuesday night, January 3, at the Opera House.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The sort of a bill which gives the right send-off to the New Year will be presented at the Merrimack Square theatre this week, beginning with this afternoon's performance.

Richmond, Hawley & Co. have what is said to be an unusually delightful offering in their little comedy, "The Siege of the Seven Vales."

Then there is Mae Monahan, the girl who sings the Irish songs. Lillian Gwynne is billed as an operatic light and change artist, while Bonny Daylefoot is a juggler and an Indian juggler to boot, as he is a graduate of Carlisle.

The Kolkerbocker Three are a New York trio with a lot of new song hits. The best and newest moving pictures will also be on the bill.

THEATRE VOYONS

There has not been for some time a stranger or more gripping subject shown on the screen than "The Adventurers," one of the features of the Theatre Voyons bill today. Its story of the plotting of a beautiful woman and her defeat by accident is a thrilling one, acted in a most realistic manner and staged with the greatest of care. Everyone has read of the European trip of the American fleet of battleships and in one of the subjects today a very line series of views of the fleet as it steamed up the English channel is shown. A laughable comedy and a pleasing sentimental story picture complete a great bill.

COLONIAL THEATRE

The headline act for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is Pearl Tangley, known as the mental marvel. This woman is an Egyptian mind reader. As an added attraction, the great handkerchief and jail breaker who has appeared in all of the leading vaudeville houses in this country. Others on the bill are Price-Behrman & Co., in a dramatic sketch, and Annie Russell, clever singer and dancer. A varied assortment of moving pictures will also be shown.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

A brand new show will be given at this popular theatre today and a big bill for little prices is always the rule here.

Wm. Hackett & Co. appear in a brightly comedy sketch, "The Two Doctors," and Alfred and Pearl give a European novelty act that will be sure to thrill. To the body of the show is to date as this house makes a specialty of the very latest films.

DANCING PARTY

HELD IN THE TOWN HALL IN BILLERICA

A "Cinderella" dancing party was held in the town hall in Billerica, Saturday night under the auspices of the pupils of Mrs. L. B. Perrin. There were about 50 couples on the floor while many occupied seats in the gallery and around the hall.

Music for dancing was furnished by Lavigne's orchestra and the officers of the party were: Manager, Ernest H. Weston; aids, Mr. Ralph McSister, Mr. Robert Bull, Mr. Francis Lyons.

A pair of slippers was given to the young lady having the greatest foot, who proved to be Miss Colby of East Billerica. There were people from Lowell, Woburn, and Boston present.

Miss Elsie Casey and Mr. Francis Lyons were leaders in the Rose cotillion, followed by 20 couples. The young ladies carrying long ropes of pink roses. The favors were pink slippers with the order of dances printed on them.

NEW MEDICAL COMPOUND

A chemist who was convinced that the old method of taking internal medicines for skin troubles was wrong, discovered that an extract from a particular tree was good for the skin. This important vegetable extract, by a method of special treatment with other healing ingredients, forms the product known as Cadum. Since its introduction Cadum has cured many cases of eczema and other unsightly, irritating and distressing skin diseases after other remedies had failed. Cadum stops the terrible itching of eczema at once, and the healing begins at the time it is applied. It is also good for pimples, blotches, hives, tetter, itch, acne, herpes, scaly skin, psoriasis, ringworm, rash, sores, chafings, eruptions, itching piles, scurvy, scabs, etc. Many of the results obtained by the use of Cadum may be truly called wonderful. ## THE NOBLER LIFE

Interesting Address By Henry George, Jr.

Henry George, Jr., congressman-elect from the 17th New York district, addressed a fair sized audience at the First Trinitarian church yesterday afternoon on the subject, "The Nobler Life." In the first of a series of afternoon meetings to be addressed by famous laymen.

Mr. George opened his discourse with a story of two Christian missionaries in a Japanese village, who met on the road a poor and aged woman carrying a bundle of fagots. "The poor Christian woman," asked the Japanese woman, "they answered, 'Yes.' The old woman tossed them a small coin, and said, 'Give this to your God, and ask him that he make the burdens of the poor a little bit lighter.'"

"That," said Mr. George, "seems to me the cry of our age, the cry of our civilization, whether it be in the Orient or in the West. And why is it so? Has not God Almighty done his share of this business? There is enough here. A philosopher, Benjamin Franklin, estimated that, if there was anything like a fair distribution of wealth as produced in his time, only four hours' work would be necessary on the average, to give to all the comforts of life. Dozens of multiplying powers have been added to the productive powers of men since then. Per capita, we are producing far more than we were then; but this business of poverty has been creeping on us. In this magnificent city, there are little children working in the mills. Is that necessary? I do not think so; and I am doing all in my power to protect against this sort of thing. On one hand we have multi-millionaires, and on the other we have poverty that takes away the Christian instincts, that makes men curse God. I think that men were made to see the benediction of the Creator. I think there is something out of joint with our times, and I think it is the business of our churches and our schools to do something to it. If we are producing so much wealth, why are things as they are?"

"I believe that it comes through the taking into the hands of some people, things that they do not themselves create. I think it comes from some power in the law—something that all of us are responsible for."

Mr. George then referred to the monopolies and said:

"There are the public highways. We give our transportation privileges, our communication of all kinds, our water pipes, our gas pipes, our electrical supplies to private companies, private individuals. These things are necessary to life. To give any body of individuals the right to set up toll gates upon public highways is to give the power to rob the people."

"But more absorbing than that, is the land monopoly. This may seem a far cry to some of you. But show me the man, woman or child that can do without land, and I will show you a diseased body. God Almighty owns the land, and he gave it for all of us—not some of us. Give me the land, and you can have any kind of government you want, but you do what I say, or get out. I am master, if I own the land."

"Suppose we put the whole burden of taxation on land values. It would tax the land into use. It would make the land grabber let go."

"Make conditions so that men find it easier to get a living, and you make them alive a nobler life. Make better physical conditions and you make it possible to develop the mental and out of this comes the development of the spiritual nature. 'Bring about conditions where it is possible to get something like a square deal, and you will bring about the nobler life.' The great trend of things is toward equal rights, toward natural justice. In Russia, Tolstol stood against the czar for years, and they dared not touch him. He wrote against the church standing with the imperial purple, and he was excommunicated. They burned his books and imprisoned those who circulated them, but they dared not touch Tolstol. He said to them: 'Why not put into prison the man who wrote the books?' Because the people of Russia believed in Tolstol."

"I believe we are coming to an order of things where there is fellowship in the affairs of men, that brings us all together, and that men are coming to a nobler life. To act like nobler life, we have got to act like men. We have got to do it ourselves. If we do it, then this world will afford the nobler life indeed."

OFFICERS CHOSEN

By Athletic and Rifle Associations

The annual meetings of the Lowell Armory Athletic association and the Lowell Military Rifle association were held yesterday afternoon at the state armory in Westford street. There were large attendances at the meetings.

During the course of the meeting of the rifle association it was voted to cut the number of matches for the Butler and Parker cups at the Dracut range from seven matches to five. The means that instead of beginning on the first Saturday of April and continuing until the first Saturday in October, as formerly, the matches will start in May and end in October. The cold and unfavorable weather is the cause for making the change.

Athletic Association
At the meeting of the Athletic association it was voted to hold an indoor meet at the armory during the spring. A basketball league and bowling league will be formed, and later it is the intention of getting up a baseball league. It is expected that all four companies will become sufficiently interested in the different leagues to be represented by teams.

Two of the local companies are taking a great deal of interest in revolver practice.

The following officers were elected by the two associations at the meetings yesterday:

Lowell Military Rifle association—President, Capt. Walter R. Hayes; G. Co. vice president, Lieut. Thomas W. Doyle; G. Co., secretary, Sergt. George D. Crowell; G. Co., treasurer, Gen. Gardner W. Pearson, C. Co.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS

Delivered By Mayor Meehan on
His Induction to Office

HON. JOHN F. MEEHAN.

He Makes Many Recommendations in the Line of Progress; Counsels Economy in Every Department and Favors a Commission to Consider Departmental Incomes and Handling of Same—Wants the Street Railway Company Help Maintain Bridges for Their Heavy Cars

Mayor Meehan's inaugural address, delivered at city hall this morning, was rather lengthy. Its main features summarized are as follows:—

Municipal economy and better department service, showing honesty, continuity and sincerity in administration, the prime essentials.

Our gross funded debt is $3,425,123, that of Cambridge $11,000,000, New Bedford $5,000,000, while our net debt is $2,395,195.

This spring our valuation will be $80,000,000; our assets $10,000,000.

Lowell in the last decade climbed from fifth to fourth place in the cities of Massachusetts, but Lynn, Lawrence and New Bedford showed a greater advance.

Of our total population but 15,000 are registered voters, while only about 13,000 exercise the franchise.

We should start a campaign for the

the city council can compel the street railway companies to bear a share of the expense for maintaining bridges to accommodate their heavy cars.

A commission, made up of city treasurer, city auditor, chairman of board of assessors and possibly city clerk, to investigate questions of departmental income and to suggest changes and checks in handling of the same.

Prompt action on selection of site and construction of a public hall, securing expression of public opinion on same if possible.

Proper observance of the 75th anniversary of Lowell's incorporation as a city should be planned by city council for early summer.

Does not favor single chamber and small governing body suggested for the new charter movement.

The Departments
On departmental matters His Honor said:

I have only one foreword to the appropriation committee. Study not only the various requests as made, but the financial condition of the city as a whole. It is the appropriation bill which fixes the tax rate. Every dollar set aside to be spent has to come out of city income or taxes.

Indications point to an opportunity to make a substantial reduction in the rate this year, a reduction which is needed, but they can be all nullified by carelessness or extravagance in the work of the appropriation committee. For that reason, while I hope the committee will start promptly on its labor, I have no special sympathy with any ambition to make a record in the small number of meetings required or in the reduction of the time as a whole spent. Better five meetings than three, better ten than five, if more complete knowledge is acquired. While I appreciate the dangers, I am inclined to the belief that certain departments, namely, the park and health departments, should be given special attention. It is but small use to talk of extending work in those directions unless money is provided for that purpose.

Debt and Loans
We start this new year with a borrowing capacity of $494,206.07. This is an increase of some $133,000 over the amount available last year. This very increase should cause us to be careful. During the year just closed we issued a hundred thousand less funded city ordinary debt than was cancelled, a very good showing. If possible, our aim should be each year to issue a smaller amount than is cancelled. It must be realized that no reduction of the city debt and of the annual sinking fund charges can be had unless a course of this kind is continued. The privilege of incurring a funded debt is one of the greatest enjoyed by the city government. Our trouble has not been so much the issue of debt itself but its issue for improper purposes, namely, the paying of current expenses. There are now important undertakings which should be started in Lowell and for which debt issue is proper and justifiable, but the taxpayers as a whole should be taken into the confidence of the city government, so there will be no misunderstanding. I propose to enumerate a few.

All-Year Bath
I believe that we owe it to the people of Lowell to provide an all the year round bathhouse and gymnasium. The city is woefully lacking in accommodations of this sort. Even our summer bathing is not conducted under proper conditions, but our failure to make any provisions for the cold months of the year is criminal. Public building in the past has always been blocked by the matter of selecting a site, and the natural ambition of each section to have such a structure in its own locality. Let us show, during the coming year that we are able to handle this matter in a business fashion. This building I believe should be as near the center of congestion as possible, and would like that when the time comes to provide a loan, whether it is for $25,000 or $50,000, that the entire matter be turned over to the park commission for the selection of site, the deciding on the type of building and its maintenance after erection. Cities which have set up special bath commissions have not found the experiment a wholly happy one.

Small Playgrounds
The very excellent report of the park commission has made it fairly plain that we have made considerable steps towards a large central playground. The munificence of Mr. Shedd should be remembered by all citizens. There is a great need though for small neighborhood playgrounds for the accommodation of the smaller children, many of whom cannot be trusted to make the journey to the larger field. From these I believe that boys over a certain age who are able to go the greater distance should be excluded. These smaller breathing places should be equipped with swings and other play apparatus. All this does not mean any very elaborate expenditure, for, to my mind, a lot of even 5000 square feet in the center of dwelling congestion is better than none at all. I would like to have the appropriation committee consider the advisability of making a loan of $25,000 for the purchase of such sites. Purchases could have been made ten years ago cheaper than today and can be made cheaper today than ten years from now. Something must be done, and there is the chance that once the city goes at this work systematically that citizens or corporations will make contributions either in money or land for this purpose.

Smooth Paving and Sewers
Loans will have to be issued for additional sewer and smooth paving work. The expenditures already made for paving have won the approval of citizens in general. The cost of merchandising goods in a city like Lowell is apt to increase out of proportion by reason of our failure to provide a proper traffic surface. The extra dollar tax which poor driveways impose on the merchants is taken out of the consumer in the end. At least $50,000 should be put into this new work and it might be well for the committee to consider the adopting of some plan which would guarantee the expenditure of a similar amount for ten years to come or until the work is completed.

The sewer work is of course a matter of public necessity.

Public Service Charges
Lowell in common with many other cities is suffering from the burdens imposed on it by reason of the use of the streets by the public service corporations. Many of these through skillfully drawn charters, secured their franchises in the first instance with but a minimum of cost and as years have progressed by legislative amendments of one sort or another, they have gradually shifted from the shoulders of their stockholders to the cities many charges which do not belong there. We all have a general acquaintance of the way in which the Locks and Canals company have carried on this campaign. In addition the street railway companies in many cases are not living up to the conditions regarding their right of way and we are being called on to make special outlay for the erection and maintenance of bridges to meet the special requirements of their heavy weight cars. It is important that we should know just where we stand on this and I have in mind to require of the city solicitor that he make an immediate study of conditions and a report which will be transmitted to you gentlemen to what can be done either by ordinance or statute to bring about a change. Inasmuch as it is likely bills towards the equalization of these charges will be introduced in the new legislature the Lowell representatives should give the matter special attention in order that the rights of Lowell may be properly cared for.

Departmental Income
During the past year there has come to my attention at various times that the volume of our departmental income was woefully small and that its handling suggested many chances for improvement. The entire city income from all sources for 1900 was only about $117,000, and the total income in 1909 was only $41,000. But even this showing is far from satisfactory when the figures were examined. In 1900 for example the corporation tax received was only $85,000, while in 1909 we received $105,000, an increase of $20,000. When that increase is subtracted it will be found that the increase in income outside of this tax was only $4,000, which is not a satisfactory showing by any means. The city in the course of a year extends through its departments many services which are in the nature of special favors for the few. This fact has been recognized by the charging of fees. The expenses in many cases of giving this service have increased and it would seem as if some changes should be made accordingly. The study and investigation of this problem calls for a certain amount of expert knowledge and for that purpose I am anxious to co-operate with the city council in the creation of a commission to consist of the city treasurer, the city auditor, the chairman of the board of assessors, and possibly the city clerk for the investigation of the whole matter of departmental income. Such a report should not only contain suggestions of such changes as are necessary, but in addition should report any system of checks for the handling of the same which may be required. This commission should have the right to call on the city solicitor for assistance at all times. Inasmuch as the men named are all city employees no special additional cost should be entailed by reason of this investigation.

Huntington Hall
The need for a public hall becomes more pressing every day. For that reason the delay is harder to bear. It is important that something be done in short order to bring a settlement of this problem. I will not attempt here to review what has brought about the delay, we are rather looking for the best means to bring us the hall and I will be glad to co-operate in any way possible. Our sole purpose is naturally to give to Lowell people the type of hall they want and where the majority want it, but it is well now if some means can be found for securing a straight out public expression on the location.

The 75th Anniversary
This year Lowell observes the 75th anniversary of her incorporation as a city. It is proper that the event should be noted in a dignified manner. The city council I have no doubt will later take up the formulation of definite plans to that end. I could like to suggest that it may be considered advisable to have the observance in the early summer rather than in the spring when the date occurs.

The central feature of the city observance I believe should be a public meeting under the auspices of the city government to be held in some suitable place at which a native son of Lowell should be the orator and at which a proper musical program would be provided. The city council I have no doubt will later take up the formulation of definite plans to that end. I could like to suggest that it may be considered advisable to have the observance in the early summer rather than in the spring when the date occurs.

The central feature of the city observance I believe should be a public meeting under the auspices of the city government to be held in some suitable place at which a native son of Lowell should be the orator and at which a proper musical program would be provided. This year Lowell observes the 75th anniversary of her incorporation as a city. It is proper that the event should be noted in a dignified manner. ## A NEW STATUE

St. Jean Baptiste church was filled to its doors yesterday afternoon for the blessing of the statue of Notre Dame de Lourdes which is to adorn the grotto on the orphanage grounds. The children who had made their first communion in the morning in the orphanage chapel, entered the church wearing wreaths upon their heads, and singing the "Magnificat." They renewed their baptismal promises and were consecrated to the virgin previous to the blessing of the statue, and after its being blessed, sang a hymn to Notre Dame de Lourdes, offering her the wreaths they wore.

Rev. Fr. Lefebvre, O. M. I., chaplain of the orphanage, spoke on the subject, the children received in the morning, and Rev. Fr. Gratton, O. M. I., also addressed the children after performing the ceremony of consecration to the virgin. Rev. Fr. Watelle, O. M. I., delivered a third address on the devotion to Notre Dame de Lourdes, and blessed the statue. The ceremony closed with a solemn benediction which Rev. Frs. Watelle, O. M.

WAS DESPONDENT

Man Committed Suicide
by Inhaling Gas

BROOKFIELD, Jan. 2.—Edward J. Moulton, a prominent citizen and shoe manufacturer of this town, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by inhaling illuminating gas.

He was found by the watchman, William Smith, in the office of the factory, on Central street, lying on a lounge with the end of a rubber tube, which was connected with a gas jet, in his mouth.

Life was not quite extinct when he was found and Dr. L. T. Newhall was called, but failed to revive him. Mr. Moulton was a native of Dover, N. H., was 54 years old and came to Brookfield 25 years ago. He was the managing partner of the Foster-Moulton Shoe company, having charge of the factory here. He was a past master of Hayden lodge, A. F. and A. M. No cause for his act is known, except that for some time past he seemed to be mentally depressed. He was a widower and leaves three sons, Guy of Wallingford, Conn., a teacher; Roy of Brookfield and Charles, a student at Amherst college.

Medical Examiner Dr. E. W. Norwood of Spencer was called, and said it was a case of suicide by illuminating gas.

IN POLICE COURT

Unlucky Number of
Offenders Up Today

There were just 13 offenders arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning, all excepting one being charged with drunkenness. None of the cases took up much time and the session proved to be a comparatively short one for a Monday.

Had No Home

Charles J. Stevens called at the police station Saturday night and told Captain Atkinson that he wanted to be locked up. He said he had no home, his feet were sore and he did not care what happened to him so long as he had a place to rest and something to eat. When he appeared in court this morning, he looked as though he had lost all ambition, and the court decided to send him to the state farm at Bridgewater.

Ordered to Leave Town

Thomas Gagan, who hails from Wilton, N. H., was arrested one night last week and released the following morning, inasmuch as it was his first offense. He was arrested again Saturday and in court this morning he pleaded for a chance to go to Wilton. The court imposed a state farm sentence, but later suspended it for 48 hours in order to give Gagan a chance to get out of the city.

Other Offenders

John Hayes, who belongs in Franklin, N. H., was charged with being drunk and after being found guilty was sentenced to the state farm.

Murtha was sentenced to one month in jail, and Joseph Paquin was given a suspended sentence to the same place.

Oville Plouffe was fined $6 and seven first offenders were fined $2 each. Six simple drunks were released.

The funeral took place at 9:30 o'clock from his late home, 166 Acton street. The cortege proceeded to St. Joseph's church, where a solemn high mass was sung at 10 o'clock by Rev. Fr. Guellatte, O. M. I., assisted by Rev. Fr. Arthur Berneche, O. M. I., as deacon and Rev. Fr. Amvot, O. M. I., as sub-deacon. The choir under the direction of Mr. Frank Gourdeau rendered Perreault's harmonized mass, Mr. Joseph A. Bernard presiding at the organ. The solos were sustained by Arthur Leveille, Amedee Archambault, Frank Gourdeau, E. J. Laroche, and Joseph A. Bernard. At the offering Mr. Gourdeau sang "O Meritum Passionis," and while the body was being borne from the church, the choir rendered "De Profundis."

A delegation of branch St. Marie, A. C. P. of which deceased was a member, escorted the body to the cemetery. They were: Amable Lacombe, Maurice Bronovest, Arthur Dumont, and Eugene Gault. The bearers were three sons of the deceased, Israel, Cesar, and Adelard Geleneau, and three sons in law, Joseph Plante, Simon Lapanne and Alexandre Pelletier. Burial was in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery. Rev. Fr. Watelle, O. M. I., recited the communal prayers at the grave. Funeral was in charge of Undertaker Amedee Archambault.

ALLEOTONE, the New Remedy for Colds and Grippe, Embodies an Interesting Principal

A COLD is due to lowered vitality. Everyone knows that. But what is lowered vitality?

It is exactly this: Your body is built up of numberless tiny cells which are constructed of certain chemical elements. When the supply of some of these elements runs short, that form of lowered vitality results, which we call "a cold."

All the medicine you ever took was made from drugs that are foreign to the body. They are used because they set up a disturbance in the system which instantly tries to throw them off. True, the cure is often accomplished but the use of drugs has an evil effect on the system, and causes needless waste of vitality.

These statements sound radical. They are radical but true. Hundreds of physicians are prescribing ALLEOTONE for colds, pneumonia, and infectious conditions. Before your cold develops into something worse, get a bottle of ALLEOTONE. You will find it gives speedy relief with no unfavorable reaction.

At Druggists, 50c and $1.00 a Bottle.

FOR SALE BY

A. W. DOWS & CO.
FALLS & BURKINSHAW
B. F. COPELAND COMPANY, BOSTON.

ALLEOTONE cures colds by giving to the cells the food which they lack. And the signal of that lack is your cold.

ALLEOTONE cures exactly as water cures thirst.

You don't have any ipecac or calomel or camphor in your system. But every ingredient in ALLEOTONE is an ingredient of every part of your body.

ALLEOTONE is a cell-food—not a stimulant, except as food is a stimulant.

But after all, what interests you is not the principle of ALLEOTONE, but the fact that its use remedies colds and allied ailments more quickly than any other treatment. ALLEOTONE will make you absolutely safe from pneumonia and infectious diseases if taken in time, because it gives to the cells of the body exactly the nutrition they demand.

Sailors on Schooner Northland Depositors Made No Attempt to Withdraw Their Money

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—Racked from stem to stern by the terrific gale of Friday night, and with her sails torn to shreds and rigging carried away, the four-masted schooner Northland, the largest craft of the kind afloat, with Capt. Charles H. Saunders, his wife Josephine, and eleven thankful sailors was towed into Boston harbor early yesterday morning by the United States revenue cutter Gresham.

It was the fifth time this season that the revenue cutter and her commander, Capt. F. H. Oberoth, and his brave crew had saved a vessel in distress.

With the worst gale of the winter blowing, the Northland was caught about thirty miles off Cape Cod Friday night in frigid weather and but for the pluck and daring of her captain, his wife and the members of the crew, the vessel would probably have been lost.

Acts of daring have been done by shipwrecked crews before, but the achievements of the brave crew of the Northland will hold a high place among them. For hours after a giant wave had stove in the hard pine cabin door, permitting tons of water to flood the elaborately fitted quarters of the captain, the men worked with might and main to clean up the wreckage in the cabin.

To Capt. Oberoth and Lieuts. Drake and Caffin and Gunner Carl Johansson and the crew of five men of the Gresham's surf boat great credit is due. In a heavy sea the surf boat was lowered with great difficulty and only after a hard battle did it reach the side of the distressed schooner and assist in righting things before the trip for Boston was made.

Yeoman services were also rendered by the life-saving crews from the Orleans and Nauset stations. The latter crew in getting its surf boat off swamped it. The water was emptied out and a second and attempt was made, but the boat went down again, and so abandoning their own life boat the members of the Nauset crew went out with the crew of the Orleans station. Capt. James H. Charles commanded the Orleans life-saving boat and the Nauset crew was in charge of Capt. Abbott Walker of that station.

A LIVELY BLAZE

Was Caused by Overheated Stove

An overheated gas stove caused a lively blaze in a stable in the rear of the Layton residence in Pavytucket street, nearly opposite Mt. Vernon street, shortly before six o'clock this morning. The fire was discovered before it had gained much headway, however, and soon was extinguished by the firemen.

The building was recently purchased by Joseph A. Marin, but it is understood that the final papers have not yet been passed.

For some unknown reason a lighted gas stove was left in the carriage shed of the stable. The stove got overheated and set fire to two barrels which were close by and then communicated to the woodwork of the building.

A passerby seeing the blaze rang in an alarm from box 28.

Saturday, January 7th, 1911, is Quarter Day at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank.

WESTFIELD, Jan. 2.—The fears of the officials of the Westfield savings bank, that there might be a run on the institution as a result of the arrest of the treasurer of the bank, Veleus Crowson, for the alleged embezzlement of $60,000, were not realized when the bank opened for business this morning. A crowd of about 100 persons hung around the institution, but none of them appeared to be a depositor and it is believed that all in the crowd were drawn to the banking rooms out of mere curiosity to see what would take place.

The first depositor to enter the bank this morning was a resident of an adjoining town, who instead of withdrawing the funds credited to his account made an additional deposit of $1000. During the first two and a half hours that the bank was open today the deposits exceeded the withdrawals, according to the officials. Several clerks remained near the bank throughout the morning hours ready to advise their parishioners not to withdraw their funds. They reasoned with several of the Polish and Italian depositors with the result that only a few of the foreigners withdrew their funds.

The trustees of the bank will hold a meeting tonight, at which time it is believed that a permanent treasurer will be elected to succeed Crowson. Mr. Crowson remained in seclusion at his home here today. His case will come up for a court hearing on Jan. 14.

SERIOUS INJURY BURNED TO DEATH

Man Was Trampled by Five Children Perished in Fire

HAVERHILL, Jan. 2.—Horace C. Moore is in a dangerous condition at the state hospital suffering from a fractured skull, a broken jaw and numerous other injuries as a result of being trampled upon by a horse.

Moore is a teamster, and as he was putting his horse up Saturday evening the animal became frightened, and when Moore tried to control him he was knocked down. The horse then began to prance about as Moore lay unconscious on the floor and the animal stepped upon the prostrate man's head and face several times before he was removed by people who were attracted to the scene.

At the hospital 65 stitches were necessary to sew up the lacerations on his face and head.

MAYOR PATCH

IS IN FAVOR OF THE NEW CHARTER

GLOUCESTER, Jan. 2.—Mayor Patch and four aldermen were inducted into office at city hall today. Mayor Patch, in his inaugural address, declared that the first two years of city government under the new charter showed considerable progress and he pointed out that although the expenses of the past year were larger than ever before the total debt had decreased. The mayor asked that a stricter watch be kept on all appropriations. He said that under the new charter business could be transacted more speedily.

FOUR MAYORS

OF RHODE ISLAND CITIES WERE REINAUGURATED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 2.—The six cities of Rhode Island inaugurated their city governments for the ensuing year today.

Four mayors were reinaugurated: Henry Fletcher in Providence, James Mullen in Woonsocket, Patrick Boyle in Newport and Edward M. Sullivan in Cranston. All except Mayor Fletcher of Providence are democrats.

In Pawtucket, a republican, Giles W. Easterbrooke, was inducted into office and in Central Falls F. L. Ratley, a democrat, took the oath as chief executive.

NEW YEAR PARTY

AT OFFICE OF LOUIS WELER SATURDAY NIGHT

Louis Weller, the well known insurance and yeast man, entertained a party of friends, mostly well known musicians, at his office in Arch street Saturday night. A musical "watch" service was held and just as the old year was disappearing down the corridors of time, a trio consisting of Messrs. James Lyons, Bob and Fred Lindsey sang Sullivan's impressive "Last Chord" with fine harmony and effect. At least to the New Year was then drunk after which refreshments were served.

"JOE" WESLEY

SAILOR LAD SPENT NEW YEAR AT HOME

Joseph Wesley, barber on the battleship Missouri which is now in dry dock at the Charlestown navy yard, spent New Year's day with his mother at Draught, his first New Year's visit home in 10 years. During which time he has been in every corner of the world.

COAL TEAMSTERS

GIVEN AN INCREASE OF $1 A WEEK

LYNN, Jan. 2.—Two hundred coal teamsters employed by 24 concerns in this city were today granted an increase of one dollar a week, following demands made a month ago for an increase in wages of $1.50. This increase was granted after a series of conferences between representatives of the teamsters and the dealers. The wages of the men now range from $13 to $15.50 a week.

MAYOR CAHILL

WAS INAUGURATED IN LAWRENCE TODAY

LAWRENCE, Jan. 2.—Mayor John C. Cahill, democrat, and a new city government were inaugurated at city hall this forenoon with the usual exercises. Prayer was offered by Rev. James O'Reilly. After the reading of the mayor's inaugural address, the city council held meetings to elect city officials.

Officers and Pot-Hunters Engaged in a Battle

OSCEOLA, Ark., Jan. 2.—A fight brought about the "night rider" incident of last night between the officers of the Big Lake Lake, Tennessee, which is about 15 miles north, prevail with regard to Big Lake. With the purchase of a tract of land by the hunting club, composed almost entirely of residents of other states, and the posting of the grounds, local hunters and fishermen resented what they regarded as an abridgement of their right to earn a livelihood. Recently the club's buildings were burned and United States deputy marshals began to patrol the preserve and warn trespassers. On Saturday indictments were returned by the Blytheville county grand jury against 41 persons charging illegal hunting and gambling. A United States marshal was arrested during the court proceedings, charged with carrying brass "knuckles." J. H. Acklin, game warden of Tennessee, is president of the Big Lake club.

THE WARNETTAS

ELECTED OFFICERS FOR ANNUAL DANCING PARTY

The Warnetta Campers held an enthusiastic meeting at their camp in Bowers avenue, Willow Dale, yesterday afternoon. Every member was present. Following the transaction of considerable important business, the officers to have charge of their dancing party to be held in Associate hall Thursday evening were elected. The result was as follows: General manager, Frank Frenneau; assistant general manager, Joseph Leaver; floor director, Arthur Leaver; assistant floor director, Leo McEvoy; secretary, John Gallagher; and treasurer, Charles Monette. After the election a dainty repast was served, after which the meeting adjourned.

THINGS YOU AND I HAVE TALKED ABOUT IN 1910

Read Here Again About the News Which Interested All Of Us During the Year

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

LIKE Matthew, the world sits "at the receipt of custom" at the end of an old year and the beginning of a new and takes account of what has occurred during the twelvemonth which has passed. It is the time of balance, of the measuring of advance and of retrogression in mundane affairs.

Unlike its predecessor, 1910 has not been marked by any one event standing out in the minds and imaginations of men as did the discovery of the north pole in 1909. No grail of the ages has been found, no great discovery has been made, unless, indeed, a certain widely heralded medical discovery by Professor Ehrlich of Germany should prove the long sought specific for an evil which for centuries has baffled medical skill and research.

JANUARY.—Paris Threatened by Flood. Pinchot Dismissed.

In the initial month of the year the world's attention was held by the menace which water brought to one of the fairest of the earth's cities. Paris, "the city of light," the center of the world's gayety and beauty and fashion, was inundated by the rising of the river Seine and its tributaries. For a week, monuments and buildings suffered severe damage and were threatened with destruction. Before the waters sank they did damage to the extent of 1,000,000,000 francs, or $200,000,000.

January saw the removal of Gifford Pinchot, chief forester of the United States, by President Taft, who declared that the tree expert had violated an order of the chief executive. The dismissal marked one phase of the Pinchot-Ballinger dispute, which was a holdover from 1909. Of deaths in January probably the most notable were those of D. O. Mills, millionaire philanthropist; Joaquim Nabuco, Brazilian ambassador to the United States; and Cardinal Satolli. The British parliamentary elections resulted in a small Liberal-Laborite majority.

FEBRUARY.—Philadelphia's Bitter Labor Struggle.

In news interest the event of February was the beginning of the long, bitterly contested street car men's strike in Philadelphia. After five persons had been killed and a hundred injured in rioting in the City of Brotherly Love the famous state mounted constabulary was called upon to restore order. The strike extended over into March. Sporting men found much to interest them this month in the downfall of Battling Nelson, the lightweight pugilistic champion, who lost his title to Ad Wolgast in San Francisco. The fight took place on Washington's birthday.

MARCH.—Famous Man Passes Away.

In March the hand of death was laid on the supreme court bench, taking from among its members David J. Brewer, one of this country's most noted jurists and publicists. Two other men of national note whose careers came to an end this month were former Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York and Louis Klopsch, editor of the Christian Herald and promoter of international charity.

On March 17 the speed record of man's motion on the face of the earth was broken when Barney Oldfield urged his automobile over the course at Daytona Beach, Fla., at the rate of more than two miles a minute. He covered a mile in 27.33 seconds.

APRIL.—Mark Twain Goes, First City to City Flight.

On April 21, 1910, the world was bereaved by the death of Mark Twain. This "man of sorrows," who had brought light and laughter into millions of homes other than his own, who was humorist, philosopher, warrior against shams and wrongs, passed away broken by illness and bereavement. He had lived nearly seventy-five years, long enough to learn that his fame was international, that his name was engraved on the hearts of his own people and that they loved and esteemed him as "that old philosopher and friend." Mark Twain, whose real name was Samuel L. Clemens, died at his home in Redding, Conn. The same month saw the passing of Bjornstjerne Bjornson, the famous Norwegian novelist, patriot, poet and playwright. In April Governor Charles E. Hughes of New York was appointed to succeed Justice Brewer on the supreme court bench. A Socialist victory, which aroused widespread interest, was the election of Emil Seidel as mayor of Milwaukee on April 6.

Certainly, of all interesting subjects of the year aviation, in view of its numerous triumphs, deserves a separate paragraph. Let us note here, therefore, that on April 27, 1910, Louis Paulhan of France made the first great city to city flight, by flying from London to Manchester, 135 miles, in 252 minutes. The year was filled with feats of human flight. Memory serves, not a single record was left infact. The year's record is splashed with red, however, since some of the world's most famous aviators paid for their daring with their lives.

MAY.—King Edward Dead, Halley's Comet Visits the Earth. Curtiss' Flight.

Ruler of the world's mightiest empire, lord of its greatest fleet, possessor of a scepter wielded by his ancestors during a thousand years, Edward VII, king of Great Britain and Ireland, bowed to a mightier monarch than he on May 6, 1910. He was sixty-nine years old and had succeeded his mother, Queen Victoria, in January, 1901. He left behind him the memory of an able, astute ruler, possessed of great social tact. His son reigns in his stead as George V. The funeral of King Edward, held in London, was marked by a gathering of sovereigns and princes such as the world had never seen before. Seven reigning monarchs followed the bier.

"Welcome to our atmosphere" was the greeting extended last May to a visitor from celestial regions, which comes to see us once in every seventy-seven years. On May 18, 1910, at 10:17 p. m. New York time, the earth passed through the tail of Halley's comet without any of the damage that had been feared and predicted. Most of us looked for Halley's comet and saw it figured like a faint streak among the stars. Emulating Paulhan, Glenn H. Curtiss made America's first city to city aerial trip on May 23, flying from New York to Philadelphia, turned his machine around and flew back. Deaths of the month: Sydney Porter (O. Henry), writer of short stories; Elizabeth Blackwell, pioneer woman physician; Goldwin Smith, Anglo-Canadian-American publicist; Sir George Newnes, London publisher; United States Senators Daniel of Virginia and McEnery of Louisiana.

JUNE.—Roosevelt Returns, Many Noted Folk Die.

On June 18, 1910, the "big noise" arrived. All other matters of interest had to stand aside when former president Theodore Roosevelt set foot again on American soil after an absence of a year, spent in shooting lions and elephants in Africa and chasing monarchs to their lairs in Europe. Beginning in New York on the day named, the welcome extended clear across the continent. That same month, on the 25th, congress adjourned after a stormy session marked in March by the curtailment of the powers of the speaker. On June 13 Charles K. Hamilton flew in a biplane from New York to Philadelphia, turned his machine around and flew back. Deaths of the month: Sydney Porter (O. Henry), writer of short stories; Elizabeth Blackwell, pioneer woman physician; Goldwin Smith, Anglo-Canadian-American publicist; Sir George Newnes, London publisher; United States Senators Daniel of Virginia and McEnery of Louisiana.

JULY.—The Big Prizefight, Death of Chief Justice Fuller.

For many months before July 4 the Jeffries-Johnson prizefight, scheduled to take place at Reno, Nov., on Independence day, had been a topic of animated discussion even among those little given to showing interest in the affairs of the ring. It was a surprise to many when the white man not only failed to defeat his colored opponent, but fell a hopelessly outclassed victim to Johnson's jabs and swings. The contest lasted fifteen rounds. "Race riots" followed in several cities. Melville Weston Fuller, chief justice of the United States since 1888, died at his home in Bar Harbor, Me., on July 4. He was seventy-eight years old. Justice Fuller left behind a reputation for legal learning, sagacity, broad mindedness and personal distinction. He was not the greatest of our chief justices, but his name will live in American annals as that of an able, upright judge.

AUGUST.—Mayor Gaynor Shot. Various Other Events.

On Aug. 9 the country was shocked by the report that an attempt had been

Notable Occurrences Which Will Have Permanent Places In the World's History

On the 19th of the same month two aviators, Weymann, an American, and Chavez, a Peruvian, attempted flights over the Alps. Chavez succeeded, but lost his life in a low fall at the close on his trip. William Holman-Hunt, English painter; Emmanuel Fremlet, French sculptor, and Lloyd J. Bowers, solicitor general of the United States, were among the dead of the month. Millions of Roman Catholics the world over followed with interest the proceedings of the eucharistic congress held in Montreal. Maine went Democratic on Sept. 12, electing a Democratic governor for the first time in thirty years.

OCTOBER.—Portuguese Republic Born. Wellman's Attempt to Fly Across the Sea.

October's chronicle contains the story of the overthrow of the ancient Portuguese monarchy and the establishment of a republic in its stead. The uprising which drove King Manuel from his throne occurred on the night of Oct. 4. The revolution was attended by little disorder and bloodshed, although there were some fighting and loss of life in Lisbon and elsewhere. King Manuel and his relatives fled first to Gibraltar and then to England. The provisional government of the new republic chose as its first president Dr. Theophile Braga.

Long illness brought about, in October, the resignation of Justice William H. Moody from the supreme court bench. Among the dead of October were numbered former Governor and Senator David B. Hill of New York, Senator J. P. Dolliver of Iowa and Julia Ward Howe, whose "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and other writings made her famous. She was ninety-one years old. Walter Wellman made a courageous but futile attempt to fly from America to Europe in his dirigible balloon America. The airship came to grief after sailing about 700 miles over the ocean, the crew being rescued by the steamer Trent. The Philadelphia American league baseball team won the world's championship by defeating the Chicago Nationals.

NOVEMBER.—Democratic Landslide. Tolstoy Dead.

On Nov. 8 the general elections were held throughout the country. The result was a Democratic landslide, governors of that persuasion being elected in Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, New Jersey, Connecticut and other states. Among the governors elect are John A. Dix of New York, Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts, Woodrow Wilson (formerly president of Princeton university) of New Jersey and Judson Harmon (re-elected) of Ohio. The next house of representatives will be Democratic, and many senate seats formerly held by Republicans will be filled by Democrats. The month saw the tragic end of Count Leo Tolstoy, world famous philosopher and writer, who left his home in Russia to seek solitude and found death from exposure. He was a preacher of peace in all worldly relations. The governors' conference was held in Frankfort and Louisville, Ky., at the end of November, and President Taft took a trip to inspect the work being done on the Panama canal. It was announced that the canal would be finished in 1913. The end of the month was marked by Dr. Frederick A. Cook's confession that he was not sure, after all, that he reached the north pole. President Diaz's rule of Mexico was threatened by revolts, and sailors on some of the Brazilian men of war gained amelioration of their living conditions by open revolt against the government. Other serious risings of sailors took place at Rio de Janeiro in December.

DECEMBER.—Christian Scientists Lose Their Leader. Census Gives Us 101,100,000.

December's opening saw the death of the founder of a religion, Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, for many years the head of the Christian Science church, passed away at her home in Newton, Mass., on Dec. 3, in her ninetieth year. She left behind many thousands of followers who find in her teachings, as explained in her book, "Science and Health," a rule of life to guide them on the road of spiritual light and leading. Great Britain found itself again this month in the throes of a general election, caused by the dissolution of parliament which followed disagreement by the Liberals and Unionists on the questions of reform or abolition of the house of lords, home rule for Ireland, free trade or protection, etc. On Dec. 12 Edward Douglass White, formerly associate justice, was appointed chief justice of the United States to succeed the late Chief Justice Fuller. This month the population of the United States, according to the census taken this year, was announced. It showed that the United States with Alaska, Porto Rico and Hawaii has 101,100,000 inhabitants. With the Philippines there are now 101,100,000 Americans. Since 1900 we have gained 16,145,521.
